'Know Thy Adversary'

One of the truest of the old axioms is, "Know Thy Adversary!"

Americans almost desperately need to know the Communist adversary. They have heard from the extremists in race that the Supreme Court proclaims Communist doctrines in its decisions.

These lies, repeated over and over again, have given to many an honest and well-meaning person a confusion of mind easily understandable. This propaganda appears in the hate sheets sent out by the various organizations devoted to hate.

The Congress of the United States, in the Dies Committee and in later investigations by other House committees on un-American activities, has issued a number of reports on this subject. One of the latest, "Neo-Fascist and Hate Groups," prepared and released by the Committee on un-American Activities, U.S. House of Representatives says in the first paragraph:

"Communism's present threat to the very survival of the United States and the rest of the free world has placed heavy burdens on the defenders of human freedom and dignity. The Committee on Un-American Activities is concerned to observe that this burden is being aggravated by certain individuals and organizations unscrupulously exploiting the menace of communism to promote other activities EQUAL-UN-AMERICAN."

Masquerade

The un-American Activities Committee then specifies such unscrupulous exploiting methods and lists as one the "organized hate group," which masquerades as a defender of the republican form of government, yet conducts hate campaigns against racial and religious minorities in the infamous tradition of fascist dictatorships.

The report also names some of the notorious individuals and publications.

None can argue the House Un-American Activities Committee of the Congress is communically inspired. The mail is full of the sort of poisonous lies it describes. It comes on little four page "newspapers" or one-page handbills. It may be mimeographed. It always is abusive of the Supreme Court, of Jews, Catholics, Negroes, educators or some other group which such persons wish to revile.

These organizations, as the Congressional committee says, always PRETEND TO DEFEND the republic. They always have high-sounding patriotic names.

They have become so evil and so full of subversive lies that the government is being asked to bar their worst publications from the mail.

Stones Tossed

Hate and lies supporting it are stones tossed into a pool. The ripples wash up on the shores of dynamited synagogues, churches and homes.

Where will it be next? Quakers, Roman Catholics, Baptist meeting houses, Methodists?

Jehovah's Witnesses already have felt the force of explosives. Hate is never satisfied. Those who feed on it are like narcotic addicts. They always want more.

None of these persons of hate have ever been harmed or injured by a Jew, Negro or any of the persons who stand for law as against defiance of it. What is the evil which drives them to abuse and violence?

It is high time that the United States government acted. There is no reason at all why the national organization of these hoodlums should not come under the scrutiny of the FBI. We have given that power in the crime of kidnapping and stealing automobiles. Are human lives and churches no more valuable?

America has something which no Communist country has—freedom and dignity for the individual. It presently is being eroded. The stuff poured out by the anti-Semitic haters, the Negro haters, and Catholic haters, is as dangerous to America as that of the Communist publications. And it is the more deceitful. It masks itself in patriotism.

Venetian, 76, Rules As Pope John XXIII

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli of Venice, son of an Italian sharecropper, was elected 262nd pope of the Roman Catholic Church Tuesday. The 76-year-old prelate chose the title Pope John XXIII.

His election by the 51 cardinals sealed up in the Sistine Chapel came apparently on the 11th ballot taken during the conclave and ended a two-day deadlock over the choice of a successor to Pope Pius XII and spiritual leader of the world's nearly half-billion Catholics.

Vatican sources said the new Pope probably would be crowned with the triple papal tiara at ceremonies in St. Peter's Basilica on Nov. 9.

INNER WORKINGS

The new Pontiff is the opposite of his predecessor who was a member of Roman nobility and a "political pope" who stressed material and diplomatic affairs. Cardinal Roncalli is expected to be a "pastoral" pope—one who will concentrate on the inner workings of the church and on the basic tenets of the faith.

The Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Atlanta, expresses "joy" over election of new pope. Page 5.

Pope John began his reign immediately and his first act was to award the red hat of a cardinal to Msgr. Alberto di Jorio, an Italian who served as secretary of the conclave. This left the strength of the Sacred College of Cardinals at 53, since Cardinal Roncalli left to become Pope.

His election spread joy throughout Italy. Some 250,000 persons gathered in St. Peter's Square exploded into cheers of "Viva il Papa" (long live the pope) when Cardinal Roncalli appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's to impart his first papal blessing "urbi et orbi" (to the city and the world).

Gainesville Men Given 4 Years in Termite Fraud

ELLIJAY (AP)—Two Gainesville men drew a total of four years in prison sentences Tuesday for cheating north Georgia householders by posing as termite inspectors.

Jimmy Mack, 30, and Jack C. Carroll, 28, were convicted on three counts of cheating and swindling in connection with Gilmer County cases. Superior Court Judge Howell Brooke sentenced the men to one year on each count, the sentences to run consecutively but to be reduced by six months if they make restitution of $475 to victims.

The pair also entered a guilty plea to a similar charge in Forsyth County and received one-year sentences for this, subject to six-month reduction if restitution of $375 is made.

Mrs. George Dies At 76 in Vienna

VIENNA—Mrs. Walter F. George, widow of Georgia's senator, died at her home here Tuesday night. She was 76.

Mrs. George had been seriously ill for six weeks with a liver infection. She died at 10:28 p.m. Tuesday.

Born in 1882 in Vienna, Mrs. George was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Heard.

Her husband died Aug. 3, 1957. He was a member of the Senate 34 years, and upon his retirement from that body in 1956 became President Eisenhower's personal representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Mrs. George accompanied him to Europe.

The beloved "Miss Lucy," as she was known in Georgia and Washington, grew up in Vienna as

Check to Official Tied to Whitman

A state legislative subcommittee revealed Tuesday that a state purchasing aide received a $7,500 cashier's check. The committee also alleged it came from George P. Whitman Jr., businessman and state official.

The committee urged the Fulton solicitor's office to study possible perjury charges against the aide, Assistant Purchasing Agent W. C. Massee, who earlier had denied receiving money from Whitman.

In a whirlwind session Tuesday, the Appropriations subcommittee investigating state purchasing also:

1. Heard sworn testimony from a tire firm official that he had been offered a "piece" of state tire business if he would "kick back" a part of his profits.

2. Recommended contempt citations against Decatur businessman Candler Jones and Purchasing Department aide R. L. Butterworth, both of whom failed to honor committee subpoenas.

The $7,500 payment came to light in the testimony of R. M. Cochran of the Fulton National Bank, who brought subpoenaed records showing a cashier's check in that amount was made payable to Massee on March 1, 1957.

Cochran said bank records showed the notation: "purchased by cash, B. J. Brown."

Subcommittee chairman Bobby Lee Cook later identified B. J. Brown as an employee of Whitman's Industrial Tape and Supply Company.

The payee, Cook declared, "is the same Mr. Massee who is directly responsible for allowing Mr. Whitman and his firm to sell hundreds of thousands of

Fund Drive Still Short, Adds Week

Atlanta's three-county Community Services drive—lagging nearly 34 per cent below its $2,359,656 goal—will be extended a week.

Donations to date total only $1,562,621, or 66.2 per cent of the sum needed for Red Feather agencies here.

Volunteers, who had appealed to Atlantans in vain for a flood of last-minute gifts, failed to meet their Tuesday noon deadline. That hour was the official end of the 1958 campaign to support 57 local services in Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb counties.

COMPLETE CANVASS Campaign cochairmen George Craft and Ben Gilmer warned that workers must "get out and complete their canvass" if Red Feather agencies are to continue operating next year.

"Nobody is willing to let our biggest drive stop short of its goal," Gilmer declared. He urged a realistic, "scatter-gun" analysis of principal campaign weak spots, adding, "Let's not keep dragging this out."

Fund-raising volunteer teams will stage another report session Tuesday, Nov. 4, at the Progressive Club.

INDIVIDUAL QUOTAS

Separate campaign divisions now have percentages of their individual quotas ranging from 97.3 to 32.4 per cent. The Negro Division leads the rest; the Business Division is "low man." Dulles Says Reds Lag, Block Ban

Hits 'Insincerity' On Atomic Tests

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Dulles said Tuesday that prospects for negotiating a nuclear test ban were dim because the Soviet Union had discovered it is "considerably behind" the United States in nuclear weapon development.

Soviet realization of inferiority grew out of the meetings of experts at Geneva last summer on technical means of controlling a suspension of nuclear tests, he told his news conference.

As a result, he continued, the Soviet Union has "lost interest in the suspension" of tests, which is the subject of negotiations to begin in Geneva Friday.

CITES REJECTION

The secretary opened his news conference by reading a statement denouncing Soviet "insincerity" on the test issue. This, he said, had been "clearly exposed" by Soviet rejection Monday of the proposal of the United States and Britain to suspend testing for at least one year beginning Oct. 31.

After years of propaganda designed to show the Soviet Union's "high humanitarian purposes" and "concern for the effect of testing upon human health," he said, the Soviet leaders shied away from a practical opportunity to begin the ban.

Sources in the Atomic Energy Commission agreed that the United States is ahead in the development of nuclear weapons. But they quickly denied that the Russians could have learned anything about this from the meetings of experts at Geneva last summer.

On other topics Dulles made these points:

'PROMISCUOUS KILLING'

1. The Chinese Communists' "every-other-day" bombardment of Quemoy is "promiscuous killing" and part of Communist efforts to drive a wedge between the United States and Nationalist China.

2. The Soviet Union's loan of 400,000,000 rubles to the United Arab Republic to build the Aswan high dam is nothing to get "terribly excited" about. It is a propaganda move whose economic value "is something only the future can tell."

3. The Communist Chinese announcement of withdrawal of forces from North Korea has "very little significance" because they are merely moving across the Yalu River and could easily return.

Hits Proposal For a New Indictment

By BRUCE GALPHIN
Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams accused the Fulton solicitor's office Tuesday of trying to prejudice his upcoming trial for larceny after trust by proposing a new indictment on conspiracy to defraud the state.

Fulton special solicitor Paul Cadenhead replied that the conspiracy charge was being considered now because the grand jury wants to finish its business before going out of office Friday.

Williams is due to go to trial next Monday on charges that he converted to his own use certain funds entrusted to him by liquor dealers.

GOT ADVANCE COPY

Under a special law allowing accused public officials to receive advance copies of proposed indictments, the revenue commissioner was served Monday night with accusations the grand jury will hear Thursday.

The proposed indictment charges "conspiracy to cheat and defraud the State of Georgia."

It consists of three counts:

1. That Williams conspired with his son, T. V. Jr., and Gordon E. Bagley, Revenue Department employee, to defraud the state of $1,045. It charges that Bagley worked from Oct. 31, 1956 to June 30, 1957, on the house of Williams Jr. at 1279 Hopkins terrace, N.E., while on the state payroll.

2. That the Williamses conspired with Bagley to defraud the state of $289. That is the amount the proposed indictment says Bagley drew from the state between Aug. 19, 1958, and Sept. 10, 1958, while actually distributing campaign literature for W. T. Bodenhamer.

3. That Williams Jr. conspired with W. W. Coleman, William Benton and B. A. Lenkle Jr., all revenue employees, to defraud the state of $433.

State Ex-Aide Indicted in $4,713 Embezzlement

The former executive secretary and treasurer of the State Parks Department was indicted Tuesday by the Fulton County Grand Jury on charges that he embezzled $4,713 in state funds.

An indictment returned by the grand jury alleged that Mrs. Marjorie E. Murphey on Sept. 30 appropriated that amount of money to her own use.

Appearing before the grand jury as a witness was a Negro porter who was alleged to have cashed for Mrs. Murphey some of 69 irregularly issued checks through which the money was obtained.

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook turned the matter over to the office of Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb for action after a state audit turned up the shortage.

Cook said Mrs. Murphey has made restitution but added that this did not give her immunity from prosecution.

Airliner with 98 Limps to Safety

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A four-engine DC6B airliner with 90 passengers and a crew of eight limped in from Hawaii Tuesday with one of its four engines feathered and landed safely at Lockheed Airport.

The liner, reportedly carrying several entertainers among its passengers, ran into trouble 300 miles off California and was escorted here by a Coast Guard plane.

Names of the passengers have not been disclosed.

Griffin's Dalton Tax Aide Is Also in Paving Business

DALTON—Wallace C. (Wally) Bryant, a top lieutenant of the Griffin administration in north Georgia, is on the state payroll, rents his own office space to the state, receives hundreds of thousands of dollars for asphalt paving under negotiated county contracts and exerts influence in the location of state road projects.

Bryant, who went into the paving business shortly after Griffin went into the governor's office, is regional manager of the state sales tax office at Dalton. He draws $406 a month from the state job, which he has held since 1951.

Bryant and an associate, W. L. (Bill) Manton, are paid $1,680 a year rent on the sales tax office in Dalton and $3,050 a year rent on the state Labor department office in the same building. (The Labor department's lease was negotiated

By JACK NELSON
Constitution Staff Writer

before Bryant was employed by the state and the department now is looking for a new location.)

Although Bryant's job is covered by the state merit system, which forbids political activity, his politicking in north Georgia has been widely known. He has actively worked for the election of Griffin supporters in the Legislature and has been accused of such activity in official protests filed with the State Personnel Board.

Bryant has been the man to see in this area if you wanted to get a road paved.

And his influence in the location of a major project is indicated in the Highway department's recent decision to straighten out the "S-curve" in Dalton.

For years the people of Dalton had tried to get something done about this treacherous curve on Highway 41, but nothing was done about it until Bryant and Manton bought some property at the curve and made plans for a shopping center.

Gov. Griffin recently dipped into the dwindling state surplus to make available more than $50,000 for straightening out the curve and buying right of way for the project.

John Quillian of Gainesville, Highway board member whose district includes Dalton, said no regular highway funds were available for the project. This is why

Democratic Sweep Like 1936 Foreseen

By ALLEN DRURY
(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON—Democrats jumped on Vice President Nixon Tuesday and one of them predicted a congressional election victory as great as that of 1936.

Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, commented that the Vice President was "whistling in the dark" in a recent statement there had been "a striking shift-over of opinion" toward the Republicans.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said Nixon's campaigning was developing "an impossible foreign policy designed by his own hand and dedicated to the needs of the 1958 Republican campaign."

Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) just returned from a national campaign swing, predicted "a Democratic sweep reaching the proportions of 1936," the year when President Franklin D. Roosevelt carried 46 states in his second-term election and reduced the GOP to 89 members of the 435-member House and 18 members of the 96-member Senate.

Humphrey said Nixon "would do well to take a few minutes and consider just what kind of a foreign policy he would be faced with carrying out should anything happen to the President."

He said the Budget Bureau was "quietly cutting back on military programs" while Nixon was "talking tough about fighting the Communists and labeling anyone who seeks a peaceful solution in the Far East an 'appeaser.'"

Sergeant Convicted of Abusing GIs

FT. JACKSON, S.C. (AP)—The Army convicted another noncom missioned officer Tuesday for the "grease trap" maltreatment of recruits at this infantry training base.

A general court-martial board convicted Sgt. 1. C. Charles L. Moman, 28, of Empire, Ala., on four of seven charges arising out of mistreatment reports from disciplined-dogged Company B of the Fourth (training) Battalion here.

Moman was reduced in rank one grade to sergeant and fined $300, or $50 a month over a period of six months.

M. Sgt. George Sovie, 30, of Ogdensburg, N.Y., the company's top noncom, was sentenced in a similar case last week. He was reduced one stripe to sergeant first class and fined $450. Trial of 1st Lt. Gerald Wheatley, 24, of Bridgeton, N.J., Company B commander, is scheduled to begin later in the week.

The lantern-jawed Moman, a Korean combat veteran with 11 years Army service, was convicted of forcing one recruit to shout an obscene phrase; conducting a mock hanging for a trainee who went to sleep on a firing line; having one recruit suspended head-first into a mess hall grease trap to eyebrow level, and kicking a can of the greasy solution from the trap into a trainee's face.

Eisenhower Urges Democrats To Vote for GOP Candidates

By MERRIMAN SMITH
NEW YORK (UPI)—President Eisenhower Tuesday appealed across party lines to Democrats and independents to back Republican candidates for governor and Congress next week. The President said the GOP is "99 and four tenths" per cent behind soundly progressive and not "hysterical . . . self-seeking" government.

Eisenhower, during a day of political campaigning agreed to make a final nationwide appeal for Republican votes by radio and television Friday night from Baltimore, Md.

He decided to add one more major speech to his campaign participation after being informed that the Citizens for Eisenhower-Nixon, 1958, Committee had raised sufficient funds to bankroll a national campaign finale.

Eisenhower devoted his afternoon to rousing pep meetings of straight GOP organization workers and the citizens group, using each occasion to urge the election of New York state's two top Republicans—Nelson A. Rockefeller and Rep. Kenneth B. Keating, running for governor and senator.

RETURN HOME
Keating and Rockefeller returned the favor with praise for the President, his record, and the invigorating results of his two campaign trips into New York.

The President's appeal to the Democrats and independents was not spelled out in detail, but his message was unmistakable, as he praised the citizens group for standing together in no "veneration of a party name," but in the mutual desire for the best possible government.

Eisenhower encouraged members of all parties to cross party lines in support of principles rather than labels, saying that as a matter of fact he had no label, himself, until he ran for office in 1952.

Until that time, he said he had certainly "never admitted" being either a Democrat or a Republican.

FDR IN 1944
The President has indicated, however, that if he had voted in 1944, he would have supported the Democratic incumbent, President Roosevelt. He favored Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP presidential candidate, in 1948.

In order to tackle an accumulation of business that has been piling up while he campaigned to the Pacific Coast and back, the President decided to forego a second night in New York and fly back to Washington, shortly after addressing the first annual Football Hall of Fame dinner sponsored by the National Football Foundation.

Eisenhower's speech before the gridiron greats was largely devoted to praise of competitive sports as a foundation for later life, but he could not completely resist the temptation to dip into politics, even if on a non-partisan basis.

The President did so in appealing for a big turnout at the polls next Tuesday. He asked particularly that golfers not play on Tuesday or even go to their clubs until after they have voted.

The President, during the afternoon, between political operations sent a message of congratulations to the new Roman Catholic pontiff, Pope John XXIII. He told the Pope that all Americans joined in wishing him success and hoped that their feelings were shared "by men of good will everywhere."

3 Russians Win Nobel Prize in Physics and Redden Some Faces in Kremlin

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Wednesday, Oct. 29, 1958 3

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Three Soviet nuclear scientists won the Nobel Prize in Physics Tuesday, posing a problem for the Kremlin. The Prize for Chemistry went to an Englishman.

The Russians are P. A. Cherenkov, I. M. Frank, and Igor E. Tamm, all Moscow professors.

They were cited jointly for their work with high speed, subatomic particles. One product of their research was a cosmic ray counter. One such counter now is circling the earth in the Russians' Sputnik III.

Now the Kremlin must decide what to do about it. It has already brought down its wrath on the Nobel committeemen for choosing author Boris Pasternak as the winner of the Literature Prize.

Pasternak wrote "Doctor Zhivago", a novel critical of communism and the Bolshevik Revolution.

On the other hand, Cherenkov, Frank and Tamm are among the scientific elite in the Soviet Union and are the first Soviet nuclear scientists ever to receive a Nobel citation. The Kremlin, proud of Soviet scientific achievements, would like to have them recognized.

But the question arises whether the Kremlin can let the three scientists attend the presentation ceremonies for their $41,420 cash prize while keeping Pasternak home. What the scientists were cited for is, in laymen's terms, a highly effective trap for elusive subatomic particles.

Without it, the Royal Swedish Academy said, the discovery of the antiproton at Berkeley, Calif., in 1955 scarcely would have been possible. The antiproton exists only a fraction of a second and is dissolved into light when it meets a proton.

The Nobel Prize in Chemistry went to Dr. Frederick Sanger, 40, for pioneer work on the structure of insulin, furthering the search into the secrets of life. Three Americans were reported as possible winners in Medicine and Physiology. They are Drs. Edward L. Tatum, George W. Badle and Joshua Lederberg, all geneticists doing research into the fundamentals of heredity. The Royal Caroline Institute of Medicine meets Thursday to make the decision on the medical award.

Let Jury Probe State Purchasing

Refusals of several subpoenaed witnesses to testify before a legislative group investigating the State Purchasing Department intensifies the cloud of suspicion hanging over its operation.

Does this defiance of the committee during the past two days indicate that the probers are striking too close to home? If not, what is there to hide?

Certainly it would appear that those who sell to the state and those who handle the buying for it would welcome the opportunity to clear up any doubts that have arisen—provided all dealings were aboveboard and the state got its money's worth and there were no kickbacks or payoffs involved.

At any rate, the reluctance of witnesses to testify is strange.

Especially is it difficult to reconcile the excuse of salesman George P. Whitman Jr.'s excuse for not testifying with the performance he staged before the legislative committee. Declaring that the latter does not have authority to enforce its subpoena power and declining to answer questions, Mr. Whitman then used the committee as a forum before which he read a seven-page oration.

A goodly portion of it was aimed at the Atlanta newspapers. This is an old dodge that politicians use from time to time when the going gets rough and which deceives only the most gullible.

Why does Mr. Whitman get so much of the state's business? Why does the state pay more for certain purchases than do neighboring states and sometimes even more than retail prices? These seem to be fair and reasonable questions.

The entire operation of the purchasing department should be subjected to further scrutiny by not only the legislative committee but by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The latter should be interested especially in a full probe of the committee's claim that Assistant Purchasing Agent W. C. Massee last year received a $7,500 cashier's check from George P. Whitman Jr.

What was it for?

New Pope John XXIII Has Wide Experience

Election of Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli, Patriarch of Venice, as Pope of the Roman Catholic Church and its approximately half billion communicants will meet with secular approval about the world, as well as the spiritual appreciation of those of his faith.

The new Pope chose to be called John, the first time that apostolic name has been used by a head of the church in about 600 years. He will become Pope John XXIII. He has had wide experience of service in France, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey.

His career demonstrates he has at all times kept himself close to the people. He has, in addition, a wide knowledge of world affairs as did his predecessor, Pope Pius XII. He comes thus well equipped to assume the duties and burdens of his position.

It is considered that Pope John XXIII was elected, despite his 76 years, because of his superior qualifications and the fact that he would have time to build and to strengthen the church's organization for the critical years ahead. He is an excellent choice.

College Football Abuses Could Destroy the Game

Georgia Tech's head coach, Robert Lee Dodd, properly is concerned with the future of college football—all of it. So is every thoughtful person whose thinking rises above the "rah, rah, rah" stage and who can see the great harm already done by the many abuses.

It will be too bad if personalities obscure Coach Dodd's point. It is entirely valid and it is not aimed at anyone in particular but at a deteriorating situation. Those who wish to preserve college football must, we believe, rally to his position and to the many others who have gone on record even more emphatically.

One of these, for example, is Don Faurot, of Missouri. Before becoming athletic director he was one of the nation's top coaches. In a recent edition of the Saturday Evening Post he had an article titled, "Is College Football Worth Saving?"

"There is," he says, "less and less inclination to put up with current abuses in college athletics. I feel," he continued, "it is imperative now for everyone concerned with college sports to acknowledge the abuses and take corrective action while it's still possible."

Football, says Faurot, if it is to justify its association with education, must exemplify integrity from top to bottom. And he adds, it doesn't.

Meanwhile, we cannot commit the folly of defending abuses and violations. If college football doesn't set an example of integrity we will soon have left only the pros. Missouri's Athletic Director Faurot sounded off weeks ago. None can argue with his conclusions. To ignore or defend abuses will kill college football.

Gov. Griffin Could Give Good Tips on Spending

Gov. Griffin told members of the House and Senate Appropriations Committee Monday that he "wouldn't know where to start" in advising them where state spending could be cut. Never was a fact more obvious than that. If the committee finds any place to start in finding economies, evidence says it will not be with the present governor.

He is the governor who wanted to add another 80 million dollars in principal and interest to the state's bonded indebtedness just this year under authority type financing which already exceeds 300 million dollars and which will take $27,500,000 each year for the next 15 years to retire.

In this administration, Georgians have paid an additional tax bill of 200 million dollars and have 150 millions in new debts. The state government is spending at a rate which exceeds 340 millions annually.

In this administration, citizens have seen their purchasing department run with incredible laxity; their revenue department rife with scandals which now have resulted in grand jury indictments; their highway department run in a manner resembling a gigantic political patronage agency which finally exploded in the Baxley scandal.

Georgians have witnessed since the beginning of the last fiscal year a surplus in the State Treasury of 35 million dollars reduced to about $4,500,000 at the present time—lowest in a decade.

It is quite true that the cost of education is going up at a rate of from 12 to 14 millions a year. It is equally true that no effort has been made to curb spending anywhere else—as has been done in North Carolina where in one year good business methods saved 11 million dollars of appropriated funds.

On the record, it is quite obvious that if the committee wants advice on how to save money it had best look elsewhere. But if it wants advice on spending, it could get none better.

How Long Will Rule By Geography Endure?

Georgia's population has increased by 326,000 persons in the first seven years of the current decade, according to an estimate by the Bureau of the Census.

This rate of increase of 9.5 per cent is below the national average of 13 per cent and means that Georgia probably will lose one of its representatives in Congress. This will give the state the same representation it had 80 years ago. Relatively the state is losing population-wise and in national political power.

If we do lose a representative, which in all likelihood will occur, the General Assembly will be charged with reshuffling congressional districts in the state for the first time since 1930 when we last lost a congressman. In the intervening three decades, there has been a vast movement of population within the state and between congressional districts.

When the question does come up, these population changes certainly must be considered. The Fifth District, which includes Atlanta and Fulton County, for instance, now has a population of more than 800,000 people. With almost one third of the state's people, this district has only one of 10 representatives in the House.

Nor is this the only inequity which has developed. Movement of populations has made a shambles of any pretense of representation on the basis of population. As in the State Legislature, legislative apportionment is by geography. Pine trees in some areas have much better representation than thousands of Georgians themselves.

In considering the democratic form of government under any line of reasoning, representation on the basis of population is the only just and fair method. Makeup of the national House of Representatives from the various states is on such a method. But in Georgia—where it has been almost 30 years since an adjustment of congressional districts has been made—we make a mockery of representative government.

It is time now to begin thinking about this coming realignment of congressional districts. All Georgians who have had their votes and political representation watered down to the point of being ridiculous must let their voices be heard. Unless they do, they will continue to be ruled by geography without regard to population.

Roman Reminds 'Provincial' Politicians There Are Nice People in Both Parties

Rome—I read an item in a paper the other day that did my heart good. It seems Vice President Nixon was speaking in Hartford, Conn., and Gov. Ribicoff, a Democrat, gave the state employee time off to hear his speech. To me that is the mark of a big man.

I can't imagine some governors I know of making such a nice gesture. In fact, I am fed up with the narrow, provincial, parochial type of politician who sees no good in anyone or anything outside of his own little area.

I have found there are fine people in all sections of the country as well as in both political parties.

'Let's Make Atlanta A Symbol of Law'

Atlanta—We, the Atlanta Chapter of the American Veterans Committee, believe that the bombing of the Temple in our city challenges every responsible citizen to re-establish the supremacy of law over the conduct of all of our affairs.

We have learned a bitter lesson. The law cannot be flouted in any respect without encouraging general violence and lawlessness. Open defiance of the Supreme Court decisions, coupled with silence and inaction by responsible citizens, has created an atmosphere in which fanatics are encouraged to commit acts of violence and destruction.

Let us meet this challenge by making Atlanta a symbol of equal rights and law for all citizens.

Children of Atlanta Called Big-Hearted

Atlanta—Just now to my door came young Master Alan Metz. He handed me a one-dollar bill with these words—in effect: "My sister Gloria and I are very disappointed that this year it is forbidden for us to collect pennies for the poor children of the world through UNICEF Trick or Treat. We've saved a little money and we'd like you to give this to UNICEF."

Now I don't know what interests were served by denial of permission to collect for the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund on Halloween on a purely voluntary basis, as this activity has always been operated. But I do know this, Atlanta children are sweeter and more openhearted than Atlanta adults.

I assured young Master Metz that his and Gloria's name would go down in the "Golden Book of Young Ladies and Gentlemen with Worldwide Vision."

Does the "Golden Book" start with the Constitution? Will you print their names to honor them as fine young Atlantans?

The Bible Has Been Comfort to Citizen

Barnesville—There are many things of a disturbing nature recorded in our daily papers these days.

One of the things which disturbs me is criticism coming from a Thomaston friend with reference to our Holy Bible. Christians, followers of Christ, choose to believe that the Bible contains the inspired writings of many dedicated men and holy men and that if this Bible is read diligently and if the truth is sought this Bible will reveal to men truths which will enable them to live more abundant lives and lives more in harmony with the God of love, our Creator, who made us "in His image."

The Bible has been a comfort over the ages and I am here as a witness of how much comfort and how valuable is that guidance because I have obtained both from that source.

There are passages in the Bible about which critics may complain, but I prefer to take the Bible as a whole and to take the message revealed therein to us mortals which is "so plain that a wayfarer man though a fool cannot err therein."

If we are not to accept the Bible as Christians do, what shall be the substitute?

Union of Porters Blasts Dynamiting

Atlanta—We, the members of the Atlanta Division, Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, deplore the recent bombing of a Jewish synagogue in Atlanta as evidence of hatred in our society, a disrespect for law and order and a failure to grasp fundamental democratic principles. We urge that all appropriate law enforcement agencies do all in their power to bring to justice those who have caused this blot on the good name of our community. We pledge our support to these agencies and join with right-minded people everywhere in condemning this bombing and in working for a society in which such incidents will not occur.

Leo Aikman 'No Vacancy' At K-9 Corral

It's a poor mail call which brings no surprise, even if the shock is at getting none at all. Early this week in the stack was a communique under this letterhead: "The Dawg House, International Headquarters for the Kennel Klub," home city, Atlanta. The signature was a "Frank."

Director. No indication as to what Frank. Could be senior partner in that famous combination, Frank and Earnest.

The message was this: "You will do our organization a great honor by accepting the enclosed membership card."

"This international group is dedicated to the sympathetic understanding of all those who have been, as well as to those who now are, or at some future time may be in the dawg house."

"Unfortunately, the people of this world have forgotten how to smile. The laugh has been replaced by the growl or the scowl. So we would appreciate your spending a moment in relating to us your most vivid recollections of having been in the dawg house."

"Such an experience makes you a de facto member of the Kennel Klub under any circumstances."

I am suspecting the letter is a promotion, but even so it is a clever one.

I feel I qualify.

If I do not live in the doghouse, I'm usually on the patio.

I am shoved inside, for example, when The Redhead greets me on Tuesday evening with, "Did you bring the Milwaukee Journal comics home?" and the answer is no. The Redhead is a connoisseur of comics the country over, and expects cooperation from the exchange desk.

Dr. Rembert Sisson, the affable and able minister at the Druid Hills Methodist Church, had consigned me to the canine corral for a few minutes the other night when a wreck on the four-lane highway north held us up idling on the freeway and we were 20 minutes late for the church's family night supper.

But Rembert is understanding. I soon talked myself out of that one.

The subject generally reminds me of my favorite doghouse story.

Father came home and Mama said, "Daddy, Marilyn has been terrible today and when I tried to spank her, she crawled under the bed. You'll have to get her out."

The father got down on his knees to have a look beneath the springs. When he did, Marilyn peeked out at him and said, "What's the matter, Daddy? Is Mama after you, too?"

They do say, too, that no young couple should embark on the sea of matrimony without a paddle.

Nasser's Playing West Against East

WASHINGTON—The political wars in our American Middle West and elsewhere are obscuring some important marching and countermarching relating to the cold war in the Middle East. For years there have been just two kinds of news from that area—bad and disastrous.

It is possible, in the view of foreign diplomats here, to consider the present news to be almost good, to a point at least.

The action of President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia in breaking openly with Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic—Egypt and Syria—is having some effects that clearly favor the West.

First of all, the Nasser Arabs are showing far more alarm about it than might have been expected from the outside. This is the clearest possible evidence that Bourguiba's thrust poses a genuine, if perhaps not a vast, threat to the Communist-associated expansionist axis of Egypt and Syria. Tunisia's potential power in the Arab world is being re-estimated upward.

Proof that Col. Nasser is indeed "taking it big" in reaction to Tunisia's challenge is amply available.

1. United Arab Republic diplomacy in the West now is sounding an openly urgent tone, half of threat and half of appeal.

2. The vice president of the UAR, Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, has just been given the "A" treatment in Moscow.

3. Col. Nasser has asked Premier Khrushchev to "warn" the West not to help the Israelis if new Arab-Israeli fighting should break out.

The line being taken by the Nasser Arabs here is that they are wholly unconcerned in the cold war between West and East. They only wish to be left alone by the West—and to be given some economic and maybe military assistance, too. The suggestion is that unless the West obliges—and makes no more "interventions" on the side of such non-Nasserites as Bourguiba in Tunisia—very nasty things may happen.

Coupled with all this is the development of a new line of Nasser "reasonableness." It is being explained here that the Nasser Arabs are not exactly "neutral" between us and the Russians, but only have a "policy of nonalignment."

This, of course, is the term long favored by Prime Minister Nehru of India—and it is a little odd to hear it from Arabs whose belligerent record is as long as is the pacifist tradition of the Indians.

What is happening is that the Nasser Arabs for the moment are adopting precisely the prim tactics and even the slogans of Nehru in playing the West off against the East.

What is newest of all, however, is an obvious loss of a sure sense of touch in the United Arab Republic—almost, it might be said, there is a trace of quite unaccustomed panic. This sort of thing could easily lead Nasser to break out wildly.

This Friend Offers You New Strength

Yesterday I said that your best friend is the one who brings out the best that is within you. No one does that for us as Jesus does and that is why so many sing, "What a friend we have in Jesus." In one of his sermons, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale reminds us of an experience of Peter Marshall and then he tells a wonderful story.

A U. S. senator heard Peter Marshall preaching and began to fall in love with the Christ whom Marshall preached about. This senator was a weak, timid man. He had been appointed from a Western state to fill an unexpired term. He was expected to be the tool of a group of powerful men.

But as he listened to Peter Marshall, he saw Jesus and began to feel a stirring within his soul. He said later to the preacher, "I'd like to be myself just once. I would like to feel the wind on my face on some high hill."

Marshall said, "The next time a moral issue arises, depend on Christ and on yourself. Vote as Christ would want you to vote and you will feel that wind on your face."

Soon a bill came up that would greatly benefit the group of selfish men in the senator's home state who had been telling him how to vote, but which would have caused thousands of little people to suffer. Peter Marshall had his radio on when the roll call vote on this bill was being taken. It was close and much depended on this man's vote. When his name was called there was a moment of silence; then a thundering "No."

Marshall said to himself, "In the name of Jesus Christ he is now feeling the wind on his face."

Dr. Peale tells of a couple who were poor when they married but they later began to make money and had more of the things money can buy. They didn't go to church like they used to. There were more and more parties and they got to drinking a good deal. One night they both got pretty drunk and on the way home began quarreling.

As they got out of the car, they said things they wouldn't have said in sober moments. She slapped him and then he knocked her to the ground. Suddenly he realized what he had done. He bent down to her and said, "I didn't mean that. I love you." In bewilderment she said, "What has come over us?"

Finally she said, "Maybe we ought to pray." Together they lifted their eyes to the Christ they had known since they were children. As they drank together the worst had come out in them. But as they looked to Jesus the best came out. They got a hold on themselves and upon a new life.

Jesus brings the best out in every one of us when we give Him a chance.

James Reston

Candidates Spew Campaign Hooley

WASHINGTON—Every election produces enough bilge to float the Queen Mary, and this one is no exception. The difference now is merely that the right honorable gentlemen seem to be throwing it around with less effect than in days of yore.

Harry S. Truman, a former President of the United States, tells us that the administration "planned" the recession and that its accommodation with the Communists in Korea was a "surrender."

Vice President Nixon, and even President Eisenhower, tell us that the Democrats are hell-bent for socialism, led by a pack of Northern "radicals."

We are told by the candidates of the Grand Old Party that unless we defend Quemoy and Matsu everything that is precious in the vast blue reaches of the Pacific will be lost, including honor. The Democrats, lost in Alsopian gloom, reply that we must get out of there quickly or be engulfed by at least 600 million Communist Chinese.

Actually very few of the horrendous prospects presented from the stump bear any genuine resemblance to reality. Unless there is a Democratic landslide of earthquake proportions, no Democratic Congress under Sen. Lyndon Johnson and Speaker Sam Rayburn is in any danger of "spending us into bankruptcy."

The administration is not "wrecking" the defenses of the nation.

The Democrats are not for "spending" our way out of the recession and the Republicans are opposed to it. In fact, it was the expenditure of 11 billion dollars of federal funds, approved by the President, that helped to break the back of the recession. And despite all the partisan recriminations about Dulles and Quemoy and Matsu, the truth is that he is listening to the opposition criticism and trying to retreat with honor in a cloud of ambiguous rhetoric.

Nobody knows about the essential moderation of the country any better than the men who really exercise decisive power in the executive and legislative branches of the government—President Eisenhower, Sen. Johnson and Mr. Rayburn. Though the President has been campaigning this week in a manner to delight the heart of the Old Guard Republicans, nothing would frighten him more than the prospect of a large Republican congressional majority dominated by the followers of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Similarly, it is a safe assumption that, while Rayburn and Johnson want to maintain Democratic majorities in the two houses, they would be far from happy with a landslide victory that might weaken the power of the conservative Southern Democratic committee chairmen and minimize their own control of legislation. Neither party can easily swing to the extremes of radicalism or conservatism now being talked about so casually.

Aldermen Say City Needs an Incinerator

By HERMAN HANCOCK
The aldermanic board's sewer and sanitation committee Tuesday agreed the city needs a 600-ton-a-day,

$3,630,577 incinerator, but asked various affected divisions to study a proposal that it be located on city-owned property adjacent to waterworks installations and the Clayton disposal plant.

Alderman Jack Sommers, committee chairman, asked that Paul Weir, waterworks manager; Ray Nixon, city construction chief, and land agent Harry Andrews study the problem and file reports.

SELF-LIQUIDATING

Graydon told committeemen that salvage of tin cans and other discarded metals and an estimated $140,000 savings annually in fuel bills at the water department installations would make the project self-liquidating. Under his plan, steam generated at the incinerator would be piped to waterworks equipment, providing all the power needed for waterworks operations at the Chattahoochee River pumping station and filter plant.

The committee deadlock over a proposed ordinance that would require property owners to pay sewer assessments unless they had contracts exempting them or produced records showing they or their predecessors already had paid an assessment.

SUBJECT TO ASSESSMENT

If adopted, owners whose holdings were taken into the city under the Plan of Improvement or otherwise could be subjected to assessment even though the sewer was laid by Fulton County as an inducement for developing county areas.

Aldermen William A. Sims and James E. Jackson Jr. voted against the proposal, with Aldermen Sommers and Milton Farris voting affirmatively.

Webb Given State Record On Lake Job

Records of more than two years of work done by the State Game and Fish Commission as a "pond renovation" project at Lake Burton were turned over to Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb's office Tuesday.

Director Fulton Lovell of the Game and Fish Commission, Fred Dickson, chief of fish management, and Lovell's attorney brought the records to the Fulton County Courthouse at the request of Special Prosecutor A. Paul Cadenhead.

Cadenhead had no comment on what he expected to find in the records. He gave Lovell a receipt for them and told him they would be returned when a complete study of the records has been made.

Lovell turned over to Cadenhead a Manila file marked "Lake Burton-pond renovation." In it were records concerning work done as far back as May of 1956 on fish hatcheries and other projects at Lake Burton, and the amount of money spent on each time.

Cadenhead said he did not call Lovell to appear as a grand jury witness. "All I want is his records," he commented.

Dairy Trucker Robbed of $24

A dairy truck driver said Tuesday he was robbed of $24 by two Negro men who flagged down his truck on Kerry drive, N.E.

Calvin Folsom, 22, of 139 Hunter St., S.E., said he thought the two wanted to make a purchase. He added they entered the truck, drew knives and took the money, then ran.

New Pope Is Praised By Hyland

The Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Atlanta, Tuesday expressed the diocese's joy over the election of a new pope.

The bishop said that while he is not personally acquainted with Pope John XXIII, he has "known for many years of him and of his great services of the church."

Here is the bishop's statement in full:

"The priests and faithful of the Catholic Diocese of Atlanta join with me in expressions of joy and happiness that the recently bearded church now has a Supreme Pontiff in the person of His Holiness, Pope John XXIII.

"I am not personally acquainted with the holy father, nor have I ever had the pleasure of meeting him. I have known for many years of him and of his great services to the church in many important posts.

"We pledge our loyalty and devotion to his holiness, John XXIII, and pray that God may bless him and his pontificate."

Why Chrysler Corporation Chose Simca

For 2 years, Chrysler Corporation conducted a top-secret, world-wide search. Hundreds of engineers tested scores of cars. Took them apart. Evaluated, and re-evaluated. Finally, just weeks ago, a decision was made. Here are the facts...the inside facts behind the story...Why Chrysler Corporation Chose Simca!

1 Because America wanted it. There's a new kind of car buyer in America today... the kind that wants to know. The kind that lifts the hood to get at the facts, and carefully checks the comparison charts. SIMCA is made for that kind of person. A real automobile, with a real engine (up front, where the safety experts say it belongs!). A car that's solid as a rock, and just plain sweetness to drive.

2 Because SIMCA gives you more for your money than any other car in the world. Mechanix Illustrated Magazine said it: "BEST IMPORT BUY IS... SIMCA"! Just look at all the standard equipment you get at no extra cost, on the Super DeLuxe Sedan: reclining seats, trip mileage indicator, 4 speeds forward transmission, heater, defroster, electric windshield wipers, unitized construction, 12-volt key-turn ignition, and even 2 roomy glove compartments.

3 Because SIMCA makes the cars you want. Terrific 4-door sedans, with gorgeous sound-proofed interiors. Station wagons, with regular extended-load tailgates. Even sports convertibles and hardtops. But most important, SIMCA makes the new car that can save you hundreds of dollars a year in gasoline alone. And you don't sacrifice a thing for it. Your new SIMCA is the world's most luxurious economy automobile. See for yourself. Get inside one, and look around.

4 Because SIMCA was planned with safety in mind. Rugged 1-piece unit construction, with perfect 50-50 balance. Distortion-free safety-plate windshield, safe front-engine design, and extra large brakes. Doors are hinged at the front, and the man-size pedals are wide apart. Additional features include a big trunk for all your luggage, and, in most of the models, reclining seats.

5 Because SIMCA is one of the world's greatest performing cars. Holder of the world's endurance record, driving 62,137 consecutive miles at an average speed of 70.02 MPH. 14 all-time performance records in all. And after their exhaustive tests, Sports Cars Illustrated Magazine said, "SIMCA OUTPERFORMS ANYTHING IN ITS PRICE CLASS." And they tested them all, as did the Chrysler Corporation engineers.

6 Because SIMCA is the Economy King. Outstanding high mileage performance no matter how you drive. Officially scored 42.6 MPG of lowest-priced gasoline. And the economy story goes further than that! Never Let Churchgoing Degenerate Into a Habit

QUESTION: We live in a small town, and when the church bell rings I feel guilty for not going. I was told that this is just a conditioned reflex. What is that, and is there any meaning to it?

ANSWER: Probably you were taken to church frequently when you were young, and such churchgoing can be habit forming. You no doubt were led to think that it was the right thing to do and for that reason you now automatically feel wrong when you do not.

The bell just reminds you, subconsciously, of your obligation. But I would add that churchgoing should never degenerate into mere habit.

There is no particular value in routine churchgoing. It must be a conscious and voluntary attendance in order to be nourished on the teaching of the Scriptures and encouraged by the fellowship of other believers.

Venetian Named Pope John 23rd

isms, call a consistory to elect new members to the badly depleted College of Cardinals, and yet not have a lengthy reign.

The election of Cardinal Roncalli continued a 435-year-old tradition of Italian popes, although there had been speculation before the conclave that this time the honor might go to a non-Italian Gregory Peter V. Cardinal Agagianian of the Armenians, a Russian-born prelate whose family lives in the Soviet Union.

Although Cardinal Roncalli is a pastor at heart, he served in Vatican diplomatic posts for 27 years. He had served as postwar papal nuncio to France and his love for the French was obvious in his choice of a papal name.

The last recognized Pope John was John XXII, a Frenchman, who reigned from 1316 to 1334.

A Pope John XIII in the 15th century is held by the church to have been a "false" or anti-pope, and is not listed in official church records tracing back to the first Pope, St. Peter.

The election of Cardinal Roncalli occurred during the afternoon balloting in the conclave. Roncalli received at least the necessary two thirds plus one majority of 35 votes. A plume of smoke emerged from the stovepipe atop the chapel at 5:07 p.m. It curled upward grayish white in the gathering darkness of the October evening. People inside the Vatican conclave area began to wave white handkerchiefs. The word ran through the crowd.

All eyes focused on the balcony where the Pope would be proclaimed to the people. Brilliant spotlights bathed the balcony in a soft glow.

Television cameras on a Europe wide hookup trained on the scene.

The huge crowd stood in complete silence.

The bells of St. Peter's began to boom.

A sea of mute faces turned upward. Suddenly a light went on in the windows behind the balcony. A curtain parted and ailing senior Cardinal Deacon Nicola Canali stepped to the microphones.

"I bring you tidings of great joy," he said, "we have a pope."

He spoke in Latin, his words almost drowned out in a long roar from the crowd. The cheering delayed his next words:

"He is the Most Illustrious and Most Reverend Cardinal Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli who has taken the name John XXIII.

LATIN WORDS

He had gotten no further than the Latin words "angelum Josephum" when the Romans in the crowd knew who it was.

There was a moment of utter silence. Then bedlam. The crowd roared "viva il papa." Excitable Romans embraced and wept. Thousands fell to their knees on the cobblestones worn smooth by the centuries.

The man the cardinals had chosen was born in the northern town of Sotto il Monte, Nov. 25, 1881, the third of 13 children of a poor but respected sharecropper.

ALWAYS SAID

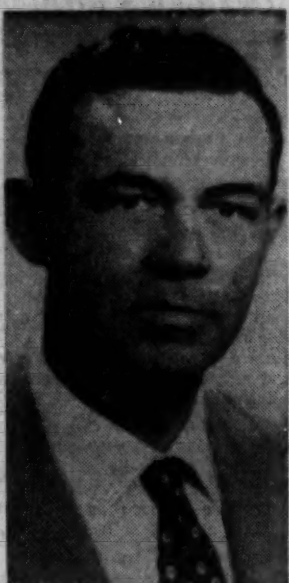

Ordained a priest at Rome on Aug. 10, 1904, his rise in the church had been steady but unspectacular. He always had said he wanted only to be a pastor, a shepherd of his flock. He was a statesman, too, but not as spectacular a man as his predecessor.

But this was the man the Cardinals had chosen. The silence was almost oppressive as the moment came for his appearance on the balcony.

At 6:17 p.m., the heavy curtain parted. The tall, ramrod figure of Cardinal Roncalli, now the supreme Pontiff, appeared. He stood head and shoulders above the other prelates around him on the balcony.

He raised his arms in the gesture of blessing and intoned in Latin in a firm, loud voice ending with the words, "May the blessings of God the Father, Son and Holy Ghost descend on you and remain in you always."

Four minutes after he appeared, he vanished from the balcony behind the curtain. The ancient ritual had been completed.

dollars to the state during the past several years."

"It might be pointed out . . . that Mr. Massee has already denied under oath . . . that he had received any money or gifts from George Whitman Jr. This was obviously perjury on the part of Mr. Massee," Cook said.

Massee was not available for comment. Whitman refused to testify Monday.

Carl Jenkins, division manager of Dunlop Tire & Rubber Co., told the panel his firm had not been allowed to bid on state tire business. "We would like to have an opportunity to bid," he added.

Jenkins said his company sold South Carolina for $33.63 the same grade and size tire that Georgia had been buying for $54.15.

He said Thurston Brown, who refused to testify before the committee Monday, had asked him once whether "I would like to have a good piece of the state's business."

"He told me he could get me together with the 'right people' and get the state business. . . ."

"He finally got around to asking me how much I would be in a position to pay off. I told him I had no way of making such deals . . . and he made a statement that that wouldn't work at all," Jenkins declared.

Earlier, Abb Smith of the Prior Tire Co. of Atlanta, told the committee that his firm did between $150,000 and $200,000 worth of business with the state in the past three years. He said his firm's prices to the state were 10 to 15 per cent lower than those quoted other firms buying on a wholesale basis.

Chamblee Voters Given to Nov. 14

Chamblee voters have until Nov. 14 to register for the December city election, Mrs. G. N. Miller, city clerk, announced Tuesday. Registration is being conducted at the city Hall during regular office hours. Persons wishing to register in the city must also be qualified to vote in November's general election, Mrs. Miller said.

Dalton Tax Aide Does Paving Business, Too

the governor allocated the money from the surplus, he said.

Quillian said Bryant had approached him about approving the project. He added, however, that Carter Pittman, Dalton attorney, "talked to me more about it than anybody."

Quillian said he had no knowledge that Bryant had bought property at the curve and added, "I don't know anything about his land business up there."

17 DEEDS

Bryant began buying property in the S-curve area some two and one half years ago. Most of the property he has purchased jointly with Manton. Together they have purchased tracts of land included in 17 deeds. Revenue stamps on the deeds indicate the purchases totaled in excess of $63,000.

On April 16, 1953, Bryant, Manton and H. E. Kinney incorporated Bry-man's, Inc., a firm authorized by its charter to build and operate a shopping center. In an Aug. 1 deed, Bryant and Manton conveyed property they had bought in the S-curve area to Bry-man's in consideration of "an exchange of stock in Bry-man's."

During the Griffin administration, a paving company partly owned by Bryant has received more than half a million dollars for state-county contract work in Whitfield County alone.

In addition, the firm, Dalton Paving Co. (formerly known as Swift Paving Co.), has been paid many thousands of dollars for state-county contract projects in other counties.

Payments under the negotiated county contracts have been for asphalt paving.

STEADY STREAM

Records show that soon after Gov. Griffin took office in 1955 Whitfield County began to receive a steady stream of county contracts calling for asphalt paving.

The Swift Paving Co. was incorporated in April, 1953.

Since 1953, the State Highway Department has let 46 contracts to Whitfield County. Under 36 of these contracts, the highway department has paid the county more than $550,000 for asphalt work.

Whitfield County Commissioner Tom Patterson said the county in turn has paid Dalton Paving Co. all of the funds for asphalt paving, with the exception of one project of about $30,000 which the county itself did by borrowing an asphalt distributor from the City of Dalton.

County contracts provide that it is "expressly understood that the county shall perform all work under this contract by convict labor or county forces and not otherwise, and that this contract shall not be sub-let or transferred to any other person, firm or corporation." However, this provision is generally violated in counties throughout the state.

BEFORE SIGNING

Records show that work began on most of the Whitfield County projects before contracts were signed. And in some cases—such as the Abutment road project—work was completed before contracts were signed.

However, Belton Burleyson, the department's resident engineer here, said he never allowed work to begin until he had instructions from W. S. Smith, division

U.N. Finds Fish Answer To Brazil's Diet Needs

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. nutrition experts believe they finally have licked the problem of getting Brazil's protein-starved jungle dwellers to reap the rich harvest of the Amazon.

Dr. A. W. Meschkat, back from a 2-year assignment by the Food and Agricultural Organization, says superstition, primitive methods, and lack of transport have caused the situation.

Hundreds of settlements are ravaged with disease caused by diet deficiency, while only a few miles away the Amazon is so rich in fish it could meet the protein needs of all Brazil.

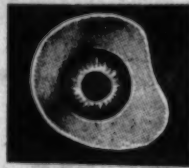

"The main problem is to introduce modern gear, equipment and fishing techniques to the Amazonian fishermen and to establish a transport service to bring the fish to the villages and towns," said Meschkat.

U.S. Wary of Change In NATO Structure

Cool to DeGaulle Proposal But Won't Oppose Some Shifts

By JACK RAYMOND

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—U.S. officials indicated Tuesday that they believe the organizational structure of NATO is as good as can be expected, but they would not oppose some changes.

The proposal by Premier De Gaulle of France for a U.S.-British-French political executive has found little sympathy here, regardless of whether the group is set up within NATO or outside it.

The proposal was contained in letters sent by the French leader to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister MacMillan.

MOST COUNTRIES

The chief reason for U.S. coolness toward the proposal is that most of the 15 countries in the alliance have made clear that they are against it.

The majority, it was pointed out here, is composed of the small countries. They have, in recent years, forced changes that broaden rather than narrow the base of military and political responsibility in the organization.

The United States is interested in proposals for broadening the area of NATO responsibility. However, officials here are wary of any extension that would make NATO more than a "regional" organization as approved by the United Nations.

PERIPHERAL PROBLEMS

Nevertheless, peripheral problems, such as those developing in the Middle East, are recognized as having a great impact on the Western alliance. U.S. officials are prepared to discuss this.

At the same time it was made evident here that the United States wants to avoid participating in the formation of a big-three political arrangement that commits the United States to consultation on its world obligations.

The United States has agreed at past NATO meetings to discuss its affairs, but only as a matter of agreement rather than formal obligation.

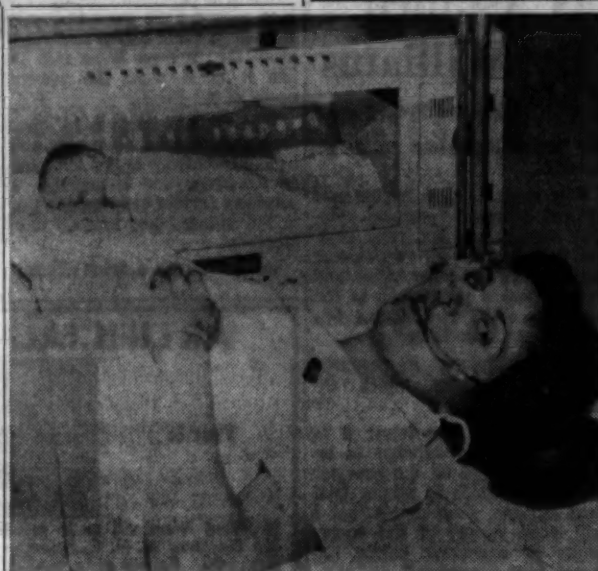

Premier De Gaulle's proposal, which became known in dispatches from Europe last week-end, was described here as in line with similar French tendencies in recent years.

10 New Senate Seats For Democrats Seen

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Daily News said Tuesday its election survey indicates a Democratic gain across the country of at least 10 Senate seats.

The paper also said there was a long-shot chance that Vermont might elect a Democratic senator.

The News, in a Washington dispatch, said its survey shows the Democrats have good chances of picking up two more Senate seats for a total of 12.

BLAME MACHINE

Errors Put Her in Jail Half Year

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A chain of errors kept a 26-year-old mother in the House of Correction for six months without a hearing, it was disclosed Tuesday. A punching mistake on a machine was largely to blame for the muddle.

The woman, Mrs. Ethel Bell, was freed after her story was brought to the attention of Judge Earl Chudoff by the Voluntary Defender Assn.

These facts came out:

Richard Williams was brought to trial on moral charges before Judge Chudoff last March 17. The charges involved two girls, five and six, the daughters of Mrs. Bell.

She was called as a witness, but did not show up. The judge was told Williams gave her $50 to stay away. The judge issued a bench warrant charging her with obstructing justice. Williams was convicted and sent to prison for 2½ to 7½ years. Mrs. Bell was arrested and taken to the House of Correction.

Normally Mrs. Bell would have been taken into court the next day. Instead, she stayed in prison. A mistake by a calculating machine operator was blamed.

The key punch operator should have listed Mrs. Bell as "11", the code number for a material witness. But she punched out "0011," the code for riotous destruction of property.

Thus Mrs. Bell was classified as a defendant awaiting trial.

Airliner with 45 Goes Into Power Dive At Last Second, Averts Crash with AF Jets

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—For a terrifying moment a Miami-bound Panagra air liner with 45 persons aboard appeared headed for collision with an Air Force tanker plane and two jet fighters high over Wilmington, N.C., Monday night.

Then the commercial plane nosed violently down and passed under the Air Force craft. The only damage was to passengers' clothing, daubed with food that was jolted out of plates in the sudden dive.

But the Civil Aeronautics Administration began a probe of the near repetition of such collisions as one which killed all persons on board an airliner and a jet over the Nevada desert recently.

Tactical Air Command headquarters at Langley AFB, Va., said the tanker plane was a KB30J from Turner AFB, Ga., refueling two Voodoo jets from Shaw AFB, S.C.

TAC said the tanker had a CAA clearance within a 100-mile radius of Florence, S. C., and the three Air Force craft were 82 miles from Florence when the near-collision occurred at 6:47 p.m., EST.

TAC said the incident occurred in bright moonlight and the tanker plane had 16 lights showing, one visible 20 miles.

The Panagra plane, which took off from New York City and made a Washington stop before continuing to Miami and ultimately Peru, was manned by a National Airlines crew under an airlines interchange pact.

OFFICER'S RIDE

He Dangles From Car At 70 mph

SEATTLE (AP)—For 13 terrifying blocks, a young Seattle policeman clung Tuesday to the outside of a speeding, red-light running car whose woman driver had slammed her window shut on his right arm.

Patrolman Harold Countryman said later from his hospital bed the car hits speeds as high as 70 miles an hour and weaved from side to side as it raced through a series of traffic lights.

The motorist, Mrs. Gracie Shippey, 48, was jailed on charges of drunken and reckless driving.

Mrs. Shippey operates a Lonely Hearts Club at her home.

Countryman, who escaped serious injury, said he tried three times to shoot a hole in the left front tire of the car and then decided to "ride it out."

During the weird, harrowing chase Countryman hung on the side of the car with his elbow hooked over the raised window and his feet lifted off the ground. Mrs. Shippey was finally stopped when Countryman's patrol car partner overtook them and forced the speeding automobile to the curb.

Countryman had stopped the woman at 1:45 a.m. to tell her the headlights of her car were out. He said he asked for her

Death Comes at 107 To Taylor Ex-Slave

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP)—Aunt Jo Taylor, who was born as a slave owned by Tennessee's famed Taylor family in 1851, died here Tuesday at the home of a daughter at the age of 107.

Aunt Jo, who had been in ill health in recent years, often recalled what she called "free day," when the slaves were freed in 1865 by the emancipation proclamation. She was 14 at the time.

She was owned by Nathaniel Green Taylor, father of Alf and Bob Taylor, who opposed each other for governor in 1896, and who both later served as governor and U.S. Senator.

driver's license and when she did not seem to be able to find it he reached his right arm through the window to point to it in the bottom of her purse. Mrs. Shippey rolled up the electrically operated window, trapping his arm.

Pensacola Crash Kills 2 Pilots

Pensacola Naval Air Station identified the victims as Lt. Cmdr. H. R. Downard, 35, and Lt. William J. E. Moss, 28.

Principal's Ear Solves Bomb Hoax

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI)—The sharp ears of Principal Erwin Koch put a quick end to Peoria's latest bomb scare Tuesday.

Peoria schools have been plagued with more than a dozen fake bomb threats since the bombing of a Jewish synagogue early this month.

Tuesday, Koch got another of the "there's a bomb set to go off" telephone calls. He listened carefully, recognized the voice of one of his students, and telephoned police. The officers picked up a 14-year-old boy who admitted making the call.

Police to Kill Strays In Rabies Sections

DeKalb police have been ordered to kill all stray dogs in the county's two rabies quarantine areas.

U.S. Grants $597,972 for Health Center

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare approved Tuesday a $597,972 grant towards construction of a new Fulton County Health Center.

J. W. Lemon, county public health administrator, said the approved grant was "exactly the amount we applied for" under the Hill-Burton program.

Lemon explained that regulations call for the federal government to pay 40 per cent of the cost of the $1,499,920 project, the state to pay 26 per cent and the county to pay 33 1/2 per cent.

The approximately $500,000 county share of the building's cost will come out of a $1,250,000 amount set up in the 1957 county bond issue. Some $290,000 has already been paid out of bond funds for the site of the building, which is to be located across the street from the new Grady Hospital.

Remainder of the bond money is to be used for construction of auxiliary county health centers.

Herbert A. Rawlins, consulting architect on county bond building projects, said the allocation, along with the anticipated state grant, assures that the project "can be built in its entirety."

Notification of approval of the grant came from the Washington office of Georgia Sen. Talmadge.

The two areas are all of the county north of La Vista road and a two-mile area around the city of Lithonia.

The destruction edict was issued by DeKalb Superior Court Judge Clarence Vaughn in cooperation with the county's board of health.

UNTIL JAN. 21

The order will remain in effect until Jan. 21, when the quarantine is to be lifted.

Judge Vaughn's order followed a declaration by the county commission that a state of rabies emergency existed in DeKalb and after the health department placed two areas under quarantine.

DeKalb's quarantine means that all dogs and cats must be confined to their owners' premises and animal owners should watch their pets closely for any change in behavior.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT

DeKalb Rabies Control Officer Lewis DeJarnette said the order to kill the stray dogs resulted from a request by the county health department for a court order authorizing the enforcement of newly imposed quarantines.

Judge Vaughn's order gives the department authority to destroy any dog which might be found in violation of the quarantine.

Under the quarantine, animals may not be transported into or out of the quarantined area.

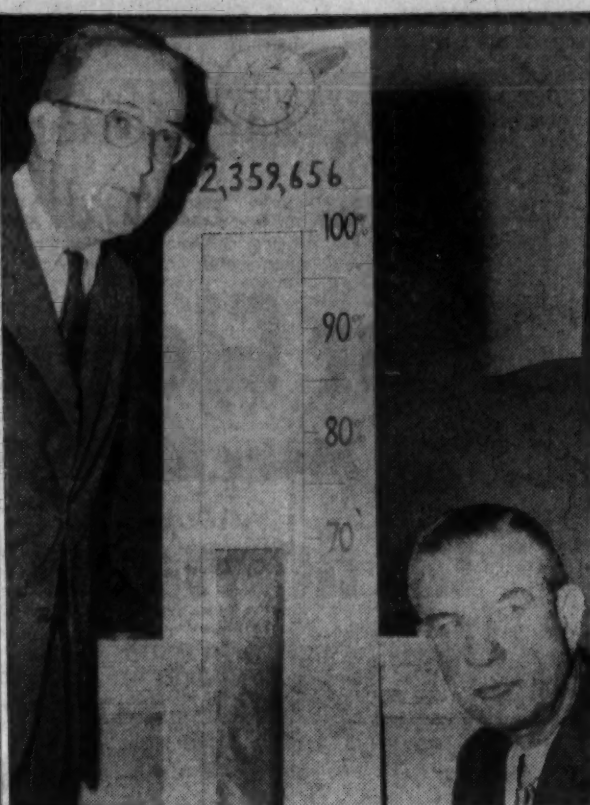

Dr. T. O. Vinson, DeKalb health director, said a free rabies inoculation clinic will be held from 2 to 6 p.m. Wednesday at the Lithonia Health Center.

2 Negro Boys Get Life in Rape Of Woman, 71

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Two 14-year-old Negro boys were sentenced Tuesday to life in prison without benefit of parole for raping a 71-year-old white woman.

A Circuit Court jury fixed the punishment by an open vote after the boys, Richard Workman and Isaac Pope, changed their pleas from innocent to guilty.

Asst. Commonwealth's Atty. Benjamin F. Shobe told the jury defense lawyers, relatives and ministers—as well as the victim—had agreed to the sentence.

Contract Let For Paving In Decatur

DeKalb's County Commissioners awarded a $42,549 low-bid contract to the Acme Construction Co. Tuesday for the paving of East and West Ponce de Leon avenues in Decatur.

Work is expected to begin on the projects next month.

The commission also approved Harry Sunshine's application to change the zoning classification at the Clairmont road-Buford highway intersection to build a shopping center.

Installation of a new 12-inch water main between DeKalb Industrial boulevard and the Lawrenceville highway to supply the new County Hospital was also approved.

The project will cost approximately $18,000.

The commission announced that its next meeting will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 12, instead of Tuesday, Nov. 11, which is Veterans' Day.

2 Brothers Held For Grand Jury In Street Killing

Two brothers Tuesday were ordered held for the Fulton County Grand Jury on murder charges in connection with the death of a man who was found unconscious on the sidewalk in front of his home.

The injured man, Radford Merritt, 42, of 468 Pryor St., SW, died after being admitted to a private hospital early Saturday. Detectives J. G. Adams and M. J. Malool said. Detectives said the death of Merritt was found to have resulted from a hemorrhage caused by a blow on the head.

Municipal Judge James Webb ordered Charles T. Randall, 27, of 468 Pryor St., SW, and his brother, Richard Eugene Randall, 25, of 480 Capitol Ave., held for grand jury action.

Detectives said the Randalls admitted being in an argument with Merritt and that one was seen to strike him shortly before he was found on the sidewalk.

No Clue to Killer of Gwinnett Guard Found

Constitution State News Service
LAWRENCEVILLE — Gwinnett County lawmen said Tuesday that they had failed to turn up a single clue in the brutal bludgeoning murder of Edward Brown, a strapping blacksmith turned prison guard.

Was Brown, 55-year-old bachelor, bludgeoned to death for his money? Or was his killer a grudge - carrying former prisoner whom he had once guarded? Or was it someone he knew as a friend?

"Your guess is as good as mine," Gwinnett County Sheriff C. W. Pittard told a reporter. "We've got the GBI working on it, and we're doing everything we can. But so far we haven't turned up anything."

Brown, a native of Gwinnett County, was last seen last Wednesday when he left the prison camp where he was a guard. His body was found Saturday wrapped in a blanket in a clump of briars. His wallet was missing, and so was his .38-caliber pistol.

The 225-pound guard had been hit several times in the face with a blunt instrument.

"Any one of those blows could have killed him," Sheriff Pittard said.

Earlier, Brown's car was found abandoned on an unopened portion of the expressway near Norcross.

Brown, a former blacksmith before becoming a prison guard, was noted for his even temper and good treatment of prisoners, Warden Clyde N. Phillips said.

The sheriff said Brown had a good reputation in the community and had no known enemies. Some people here said Brown sometimes carried large sums of money in his wallet. However, his brother, Clifford Brown, denied this and said Edward seldom had more than $5 or $10 on him at one time. Sheriff Pittard said the distance between the prison camp and Brown's home was about 10 miles. Somewhere between the prison camp and home Brown met his death "and that is all we know," the sheriff said.

An Atlanta boy on skates was fatally injured Tuesday when he fell into the path of an automobile, police said. Two other persons were killed and three injured in a wreck near Summer in North County.

Larry Owens, 12, Negro, of 240 Howell St., NE, died after being admitted to Grady Hospital. Patrolmen B. L. Anderson and J. A. Tinsley said the youth suffered massive head and chest injuries when he fell into the path of a car in the 500 block of Johnson street, NE.

Patrolmen said no charge was placed against the driver, William H. Lowe of 299 Glen Iris Dr., NE. Lowe was quoted that he first saw the youth when he threw up his hands and fell in front of the car. Patrolmen said there was no evidence the front of the machine struck the youth. When the vehicle stopped, the right rear wheel was on the youth's head, officers said.

Anderson and Tinsley said they had been told the boy was seen skating along Johnson street for an hour before the accident occurred.

His death was the 58th fatality for the year in Atlanta.

Webb Asks for $20,000 To Push Probe of State

The Fulton County Budget Commission was asked Tuesday to set up $20,000 in 1959 to continue the probe of state government being headed by Special Prosecutor A. Paul Cadenhead.

AFTER 7 MONTHS

Peachtree At Forrest To Reopen

Peachtree street at Forrest avenue, NE, will be opened to traffic Monday for the first time since last March.

Ray Nixon, city construction chief, conferred with contractors Tuesday and got a "firm agreement" that the $100,000 Peachtree street bridge over the downtown expressway connector will be completed Monday and the street opened to traffic.

MacDougald Construction Co. is the contractor on the project, which will span the connector as it passes beneath Peachtree street. Nixon expressed satisfaction that the project has proceeded "relatively rapidly."

The construction head also said Tuesday he has instructed Robert & Co. Associates, architects and engineers on construction of the $3,800,000 Techwood viaduct across railway tracks in the downtown area, to proceed with plans. He said plans will be completed and the city will proceed with condemnation if it needed to acquire Southern Railway holdings for the improvement.

N. C. & St. L. officials have given the city the right to construct the improvement over their property owned by the road.

The giant new facility is the most costly planned from the 1957 bond issue. It will extend approximately one-half mile over railroad tracks, and along with the planned Hunter street viaduct will open up new large areas in the downtown section of the city. It will extend a four-lane highway over tracks from Marietta street to Nelson street.

Target date for completing plans for the Techwood project is Jan. 26.

Capital Airlines Fails in Effort To End Strike

WASHINGTON, UP—Capital Airlines reported Tuesday complete lack of progress in negotiations to settle a 13-day shutdown of its operations in a strike by mechanics.

Robert J. Wilson, company vice president, conferred with the National Mediation Board Tuesday. Representatives of the International Association of Machinists talked with board officials Monday about a new union offer.

Wilson said the union's position was to stand pat on wage demands and revive "a large number of restrictive and costly rules which the presidential fact-finding board rejected in its report."

The union wants a 42-cent hourly pay boost for the 2,500 striking mechanics whose earnings have averaged $2.46 an hour. Capital offered a raise of up to 26 cents an hour but cut that offer a penny a day until it had reached 20 cents Tuesday. The presidential board had recommended a 20-cent raise.

Hi-Y Youth Day

CARTERSVILLE—The third annual Hi-Y Civic Youth Day has been set for Nov. 13, when high school students will take over the reigns of city government for one day.

Sol. Gen. Paul Webb asked the commission to set up for the probe the amount which probably will be left from $50,000 the county commissioners set up earlier this year for the probe.

Although the commissioners approved $50,000 for the probe, they allocated $30,000 and held the remainder of the money in reserve.

Comptroller John F. Still, a member of the budget group, told Webb that his records show the investigation is taking about $1.00 per week. This would just about consume the remainder of the $30,000 by the year's end, he said.

Webb told the budget commission his request for setting up the $20,000 was being based "largely on what might happen under a new state administration."

The solicitor said he was "in hopes" that the state might want to assume the expenses of the investigation under a new administration.

County Commission Chairman Carlyle Fraser told Webb he felt the probe "has paid for itself already."

Michigan Group Cites Elias Nour

Elias Nour, hero of Stone Mountain, has been honored by a Michigan Refrigeration Society as a fellow tradesman and as "an outstanding American."

Lyles Witness Kin To Be Exhumed

COLUMBUS (AP)—The body of the husband of a woman indicted on a charge of perjury in the Annette Lyles poison case in Macon has been ordered exhumed for medical examination.

Superior Court Judge Hubert Calhoun signed the order Tuesday for exhumation of the body of Robert Almond, a 55-year-old Muscogee County deputy sheriff who died June 25, 1957. At that time, death was attributed to heart disease.

The exhumation was requested by Coroner C. F. Davis on the basis of an affidavit from Sheriff E. F. Howell.

Almond's widow, Mrs. Jewel Almond, was indicted by the Bibb County grand jury at Macon last week on perjury charges tracing to the fact that she witnessed a paper purporting to be the will of Mrs. Julia Young Lyles.

In trying Mrs. Annette Lyles, the state contended this will was a forgery. Mrs. Lyles was convicted of killing her 9-year-old daughter, Marcia, and is under death sentence. She also is under indictment for the poison deaths of her mother-in-law, the elder Mrs. Lyles, and her two husbands, Ben F. Lyles Jr., and Joe Neal Gabbert.

Mrs. Almond is a friend of Annette and sold a Macon house to the buxom widow. Mrs. J. B. Bryan of Macon was indicted along with Mrs. Almond. Her name also appears as a witness to the will.

The sheriff would make no statement except to say he has evidence which leads him to believe death was due to other than natural causes.

Miss Lucy's fulltime occupation, to which she devoted herself for 34 years they lived in the Mayflower Hotel in Washington prior to Sen. George's retirement in 1956.

In Washington circles, she was liked by women and respected by men. A typical incident regarding Miss Lucy occurred in November, 1956.

The wife of the retiring senior member of the U.S. Senate at that time had this word of advice for wives of newly elected lawmakers: "Try to be your natural self."

She warned that "some people might think you're small-townish," but she added that she always had considered herself "small-townish" and it hadn't hurt her a bit.

She often traveled with the Senator and sat with him on the platform at major speaking engagements. She also took an active part in organizing women's groups in behalf of his candidacy.

In addition to Heard Franklin, survivors include a brother, Price Heard, of Orlando, Fla., and a sister, Mrs. A. C. Crockett, of Bradenton, Fla. A granddaughter in Washington, D. C., also survives.

Loss of Congress Seat Would Shake Up State

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Editor

If Georgia loses a congressman on the basis of the 1960 census, there's likely to be some fancy maneuvering when the Legislature reapportions the remaining nine congressional districts.

Preacher Free Of Charges in Child-Romance

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Sevier County grand jury has refused to indict a 33-year-old preacher, whose attempt to marry an 11-year-old girl was followed by Georgia's new three-day waiting period.

The Rev. George Washington Rollins, a missionary Baptist, was charged with contributing to the delinquency of Frieda Ogle.

A charge of kidnapping had been dismissed previously when the girl told a county judge she willingly accompanied the divorced father of five children to Georgia to be married. Frieda said they "swapped a few kisses," and she accepted Rollins' proposal of marriage. They left their Smoky Mountains home Oct. 17 and went to Rossville, Ga., but clerks refused to grant them a license because of the waiting period, and he took her to an aunt in Atlanta.

Rollins' former wife divorced him two months ago on non-support grounds.

2 Institutions Get Midnight Bomb Calls

Two telephoned bomb threats shortly before midnight Tuesday broke the first lull in such threats that have flowed in the wake of the bombing of the Jewish Temple.

A caller notified the Martha Candler Home for Girls at 255 Washington St., S.W., that the place "would be blown up at midnight," police said. Shortly thereafter a similar threat was received at the Fulton Juvenile Detention Home on Central avenue, S.W.

NOTHING UNUSUAL
Uniformed officers were dispatched to both places but found nothing unusual. Patrols were geared to keep lookouts on both places during the remainder of the night, although the calls were believed to have been made by pranksters.

The juvenile home was damaged by a blast last year. However, police said a suspect was arrested in that case and the incident had nothing to do with the Temple bombing or other bomb threats here.

DOZEN THREATS
A dozen schools and colleges over the Atlanta area have received bomb threats since the Temple blast on Oct. 12.

At least 18 Atlanta detectives and scores of FBI and GBI agents were still busy on the Temple bombing probe as the new threats came in. Capt. R. E. Little, who has spearheaded the probe, said nothing new had developed since the indictment of five men in connection with the blast.

Andersonville's Spring Was No Miracle, Experts Told

Providence Spring at the Confederate prisoner-of-war camp at Andersonville wasn't so providential, Dr. Robert C. Pendergrass of Americus told the Atlanta Civil War Round Table Tuesday.

Legend says that a lightning bolt struck the ground inside the prison, causing water to gush forth as a boon for the thirsty prisoners.

"It's a nice story but the spring had been there all along," Dr.

State NAACP Convenes Nov. 6 At Savannah

The 17th annual conference of Georgia branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be held in Savannah, Nov. 6-9.

The theme of the meeting will be "Fifty Years of Progress But Free by Sixty-Three."

The Rev. Amos O. Holmes of Atlanta, Georgia field secretary, said special emphasis will be put on voter registration; labor, land, housing and finance problems of Negroes; and the looming civil rights battle resulting from pending court actions on school integration suits involving the University of Georgia and Atlanta and Fulton County schools, the Atlanta bus integration suits, and voter registration cases in Dawson and Terrell counties.

National executive secretary Roy Wilkins will address the conference Friday night, Nov. 7.

Mothers-for-Sidewalks Call Off Blockade, Win Promise from Police

DeKalb's "Mothers-for-Sidewalks" attempt to blockade busy North Druid Hills Road was called off Tuesday morning as county police moved in to patrol the area.

The 30 mothers refused to leave the North Druid Hills-Clairmont Road intersection until they were assured that patrolmen will be on duty there regularly.

Tuesday's demonstration was led by Mrs. John L. Liles of 1914 Jacolyn Pl., N.E.

Mrs. Liles said she and her companions hatched the idea to form a human blockade on the traffic clogged thoroughfare after they got what she called "no satisfaction" from County Commission Chairman Claude H. Blount.

Monday a 150-person delegation appeared before the commission, seeking sidewalks along North Druid Hills road.

supporter of the county unit system that insures rural domination of Georgia politics.

If Georgia's congressional strength is reduced to nine members by the 1960 census, it will be same number the state had in 1870. The state gained its 10th congressman following the census of 1880 and another 10 years later. Georgia reached its peak congressional strength in 1910 when a 12th member was allotted the state.

Ailing Mayor Dunn Granted Baxley Trial Postponement

BAXLEY (AP)—Mayor J. M. (Buck) Dunn's trial on charges of conspiring to defraud the state and forgery has been continued until a special court term starting Dec. 8.

Judge Douglas F. Thomas granted the postponement Tuesday on testimony of Dr. Edward

J. Virusky that Dunn has been running a high fever with a virus infection and to stand trial now would endanger his health.

Brazil Would Rocket Cat 45 Miles in Space

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Brazilian Army expects to launch a rocket that may carry a cat 45 miles into space next month.

This was disclosed at a press briefing by Lt. Col. Manuel do Santos Laje, head of the armaments section of the Army Technical School, builder of the rocket.

The cat, with recorded instruments attached, would be fed oxygen and parachuted to earth from Virusky said the mayor's temperature rose to 103 or 104 degrees. He added that while the patient has been home from a hospital for about a week, he needs two to four weeks more to recuperate.

Dunn had been slated for trial at the court term starting Monday on indictments arising from the Baxley road scandals. He is under bond of $5,000 each on two indictments.

Sol. Gen. Glenn Thomas inquired of the physician whether immediate trial would endanger Dunn's life. Virusky replied that the mayor's life would not necessarily be endangered but his health would. Dunn himself was not in court.

Waycross Ex-Chief Is Indicted

Former Waycross Police Chief A. L. Ball was indicted Tuesday on two counts of embezzlement and fraudulent conversion of Waycross police funds.

The first count of the indictment by the Ware County grand jury, meeting in Waycross, charges Ball took $3,483.50 in cash, vouchers and checks between Nov. 29, 1957, and Aug. 28, 1958.

The second count accuses the former chief of taking from the same funds $10,539.65 during the period of Dec. 27, 1955, to Nov. 29, 1957.

Conviction on each count would carry a penalty not less than two nor more than seven years' imprisonment.

The Ball indictment was the first returned by the October grand jury and Sol. Gen. Dewey Hayes said the case is scheduled for trial next week.

Ball served as Waycross chief from 1951 until September of this year when he resigned. A warrant for his arrest was issued on Sept. 27, charging larceny after trust and signed by Mayor Roy McDaniel. Ball was freed on $20,000 bond shortly after his arrest. He has denied the charges.

An auditor's report showed a discrepancy of about $15,000 between the total of fines and bond forfeitures paid to police and the total turned over to the city treasury.

Broiler Meeting

Broiler businessmen from all over Georgia will meet in Gainesville Wednesday for a special report on "Profit Potential Through Power Selling," announced Gordon Sawyer, Southwestern division manager of the National Broiler Council. . . . A group of Columbus officials, led by Harry Boyce, Columbus Municipal Planning Commission chairman, were told in Washington, D.C., Tuesday that the Georgia city cannot now be included in the interstate highway system but that it should reap considerable indirect benefits. B. D. Tallaway, federal highway administrator, told the delegation that interstate projects in Georgia will release primary, secondary and urban road funds to develop other highways equal in standard to the federal system.

War on Pigeons

Sandersville officials, because of complaints from citizens, have begun public shoots to kill off wild pigeons which have become a nuisance to public buildings in the city. Mayor Tom Carr said 200 of the approximately 500 cooing birds were killed in two shoots so far. The third shoot is planned for this Wednesday afternoon with several hunters invited to join city employees in decimating the birds. . . . Five youths, ranging in age from 13 to 15, have been arrested in Waycross on charges of purse snatching and thefts ranging from autos to fountain pens, acting Police Chief J. L. Murphy said. Murphy said all the loot, except for the fountain pens taken from a super market, has been recovered.

Gerontology Society

The Georgia Gerontology Society will hold its annual meeting in Atlanta Friday. Members from Savannah, Thomasville, West Point, Atlanta and Athens meeting at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of the State Health Department will participate in a panel to discuss the future of gerontology—the study of aging, said Miss Elizabeth Powell, Athens, retiring president. . . . Debate teams from 18 Southern colleges and universities will compete in Mercer University's second annual Dixie debate tournament Friday and Saturday in Macon.

Police Have News for This Driver

The Atlanta Police Department has some good news—and bad news—for a steel worker.

The good news is in the form of $89.81 which the steel worker may think was forwarded to his wife in Copperhill, Tenn., following an auto crash last Thursday.

Actually the money—$84 of it cash and a check for $25—has been impounded.

The bad news is in the form of traffic charges growing out of the crash on Moreland avenue, at Druid place, NE.

Patrolman James McConnell said he was told that the steel worker walked away from the scene when the second driver, Leland S. Cox Jr., 43, of 1228 Citadel Dr., NE, went to telephone for police.

A short time later, McConnell said, the steel worker knocked at a door on Fairview road, NE, explained that he had been involved in an accident. The patrolman said he handed over the money and check and asked that it be sent to his wife in Tennessee.

The money and check were turned over to police.

McConnell said the trail of the steel worker vanished entirely. He added the abandoned auto was released to a used car dealer from whom the steel worker had purchased it.

He added the money and check will be returned to the missing steel worker—if he will only come and get it.

Griffin Decrees Week Of Science Education

Gov. Griffin Tuesday proclaimed the week of Nov. 2-8 as "Science Education Week" in Georgia.

He said his proclamation was issued to focus attention on the need to stimulate scientific interest in the formative period of a child's education.

"The universities and other institutions of higher learning cannot make a top-notch scientist, mathematician or engineer out of a young student who has turned his nose up on these studies through grade school and high school," Griffin said.

Survival Plan Need Stressed

Industrial leaders were warned here Tuesday they must have effective survival plans ready to swing into immediate operation or face the possibility of grave consequences in the event of an emergency.

Antarctic Plateau Reported by Russians

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet scientists have claimed a "first" in the Antarctic. The official news agency Tass said scientists with the Soviet continental Antarctic expedition reported they were first to establish that a snow-covered ice plateau extends more than 870 miles between the "Sovetskaya" research station and the geographical South Pole. The expedition is headed by Evgeni Tostikov.

Maj. Gen. S. G. Henry of Baton Rouge, director of community relations for the Ethyl Corp., told delegates to the Southern Industrial Survival Conference here, that Texas City, Texas, presented a drastic picture of the results of no planning in 1947.

Of 532 persons who were killed in explosions that ripped the city, 400 died needlessly because lack of proper evacuation and traffic plans, he said.

The civil defense conference wound up two days of sessions Tuesday afternoon.

Monkey Was Up a Tree, But Things Are Better Now

A tiny squirrel monkey rescued by police from a chilly tree perch Tuesday made a quick physical recovery at the Atlanta Humane Society, but his disposition took a turn for the worse.

Patrolmen G. S. Robertson and J. W. Lewis found the monkey shivering in an oak tree in the 200 block of Hascall road, NW. His leash and collar had become entangled in the tree branches and held him fast.

"He took hold of my forefinger like a baby does," Lewis said. "We thought he was about done for."

Patrolmen rushed the monkey to the Humane Society. There he was wrapped in warm towels, given an injection of penicillin and fed bananas.

As his physical condition improved, Humane Society officials said, his disposition worsened. Instead of clinging to fingers, he snapped at them.

And, said the society: His owner is urged to come for him.

Annie Lou Hardy Debutante Festivities To Spark Weekend

Though no football game is scheduled, this week will terminate in one of the gayest weekends of the season, with hardly time to crowd in everything. The Driving Club's Halloween Ball, at which the winter's debutantes will be presented for the first time as a unit, will climax the festivities which begin as soon as the girls start arriving from college.

Debutante Birney Robert arrives with her parents, the L. W. Roberts, from Washington on Friday to be a guest at the Biltmore. That evening Price Gilbert will entertain at a dinner party in her honor at his home on Arden road.

On Saturday Mrs. Steven Harris will give a luncheon for debutante Tallulah Morton at the Driving Club. That afternoon the rehearsal for the ball will get under way at the club.

Before the ball, the debs and their escorts will be guests at a champagne party, with the Driving Club officers as hosts. Following the ball Mr. and Mrs. William J. Young of Allentown, Pa., will be hosts at a breakfast at the Steak and Trumpet honoring debutante Cornelia Johnson. Guests for the party will be limited to the debs and their escorts.

Mrs. E. F. Lindgren Jr. has planned a coffee on Saturday, Nov. 8, in compliment to debutante Mary Ann Lindgren, and on the following Saturday, Nov. 15, Mrs. Homer R. Sanford will be hostess at a brunch at the Driving Club, with debutante Janet Steinbruegge as guest of honor.

MISS JOLIE RICHARDSON arrived home from the horse show circuit on Sunday with new laurels to her credit. Her latest was acquired in Kansas where her five-gaited mare, Lady Carrigan, again won the world championship in the American Royal Horse Show.

The evening before going to Kansas City, Jolie exhibited her five-gaited gelding, Garrymore, at the Penn National Horse Show in Harrisburg, Pa. The gelding was judged the world champion in the five-gaited class for the fourth year in a row.

Jolie just had time to repack her bags and leave on Tuesday for New York and the Madison Square Garden Horse Show where Garrymore will again be in the limelight.

OTHER ATLANTANS attending the Penn National Show were the Cody Lairds and their daughters, Nancy and Mrs. George S. Williams. Nancy rode her hunter, Silver Miner, which was judged conformation hunter champion.

Nancy will also ride Silver Miner in the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, Canada, on Nov. 14. Her parents will accompany her to Toronto.

MRS. LEO SHERIDAN of Ponte Vedra, Fla., has arrived for a visit to her sisters, Mrs. J. Beauchamp Coppedge of 10 Vernon Rd., and Mrs. Gerald O'Keeffe of 1327 Peachtree Rd., who is a patient at Piedmont Hospital.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY TOMPKINS are just back from a trip to India which the latter describes as "just heavenly and the most beautiful trip I've ever had."

They were accompanied by those former Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Black of Washington; the John Youngs (she is the former Marion Wolff of Atlanta); the George Woods and the Andrew Overbys of New York; the Crawford Johnsons of Birmingham; the Harold Johnsons of Florida and Virginia; Lord and Lady Harcum of London; the Dan Pierces of Princeton, N. J., and the Ed Smiths of Chicago.

"We went first to Cashmere, then to Agra to see the Taj Mahal, to Jaipur and on to New Delhi for a meeting of the World Bank," said Mrs. Tompkins. Mme. Ghandi entertained at tea and a fashion revue for the feminine guests at the meeting. The beauties of India were assembled as models, and their costumes, all native dress, were the most exquisite I have ever seen. Many of the older costumes were taken from museums for the occasion."

En route home Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins visited Egypt and Greece, and spent a week in Paris.

HOLIDAYING IN JAMAICA are Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Bunzl of 3755 Wieuka Rd., who are guests at the Tower Isle Hotel.

Marvin's World Is Hospital Bed

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

Calvin and Marvin, roommates in Grady Hospital's shiny pediatrics area, don't have much to say to each other.

Born eight weeks ago, Calvin spends most of his time sleeping and eating, though he does have a few tuneful interludes.

Eight-month-old Marvin explores the world of his hospital crib or gazes blue-eyed at his doctors and nurses, warm and kind despite their white starched uniforms. Marvin plays with a rubber girl doll and a blue-plaid giraffe.

These babies are two of the youngest patients in the white pediatrics area at Grady. About 30 or 40 youngsters usually are found in the ward which is staffed by a variety of doctors, nurses, students, practical nurses and volunteers.

FROM BIRTH TO 12

The ward takes sick children from birth to 12 years of age. The youngsters romp up and down the halls, play with the toys in the recreation room, roll around in wheel chairs or lie patiently in bed to recover from surgery or broken bones.

Roommates Lamar Alexander and Lynn Timms have plenty to say to each other or, at least, Lamar has plenty to say to Lynn. "I read to her," declared the handsome boy as he spread out a stack of books. "And she goes to sleep."

Lynn showed a quiet, pretty smile. "I had appendicitis," she explained. "It started with a big stomach ache." Both the 8-year-old youngsters attend the third grade, and both have seven brothers and sisters.

HANGS IN TRACTION

Lamar's broken right leg hangs in traction, the only part of his muscular anatomy which lies still. "I fell out of a big old pear tree," he said enthusiastically. "I said 'Oh!'" When Lamar isn't injured, he likes to "run and play and holler."

"That's my punching bag," he declared brightly and pointed to a sagging stuffed doll hanging on the traction rig.

"I've torn him all to pieces."

For some of the patients, the babies, it's a real treat to be carried around the ward, and the nurses take time to cuddle the tiny tots. Blonde, blue-eyed Wanda liked being held so well that she cried when the nurse put her down. But the nurses have hard work to do, and they can't always spend a lot of time with the babies.

Mrs. Anthony Savino, head nurse of the area, supervises, handles problems that arise and generally keeps the ward operating smoothly. "In my position, I can't become too attached to the youngsters, although it's easy to do. New patients are constantly arriving, and I must take care of them, too."

MUTUAL CARE

Sometimes the patients take care of each other, like the Tatum children. Seven-year-old Bill looked after sister Jackie, a 2-year-old moppet who seemed happily at home in the large, airy ward. These brown-eyed youngsters had come to Grady for tonsillectomies.

Some of the patients can't run, like George Duke who sits in a wheel chair. The pleasant, 11-year-old student from East Lake School has osteomyelitis, a bone infection. But for legs George substitutes wheels.

"Yeah," laughed Donnie Ray Bailey who had a swollen jaw, "he sees how fast he can go in the chair."

Though he's missed a few weeks of school, George has kept up with his classmates in one respect, at least. He's a hula-hooper—of the neck variety.

Miss America Tour Steps Up Mary Ann's Mississippi Pace

By YOLANDE GWIN

Mary Ann Mobley of Brandon, Miss., a slow talking, well poised and very beautiful Southern belle, came to town yesterday and had a lot to say to a lot of people.

Currently she is Miss America of 1959 and since her coronation at Atlantic City not too long ago, she has been on a whirlwind tour with the beauty pageant's official chaperone, Mrs. Peggy O'Neill.

"This tour is really stepping up my usual Mississippi pace," she said. "But it has been wonderful and this is my first official visit to Atlanta."

As she stepped off the plane from New York—the last of the long stream of passengers including Atlantans Mr. and Mrs. Mills B. Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Bryant—she was presented a bouquet of red roses by Rawson Haverly, who also presented her a nice speech of welcome.

SOUTHERN MEN

"Oh you talk just like all the nice Southern men," she said as the crowd closed in on her. "How kind of you to meet me!"

"And my goodness there's Mr. Sutton!" she gasped and John Sutton received an affectionate hug from the visitor. Mr. Sutton was one of the judges in a Mississippi contest in Biloxi in which she competed.

As she swung toward the airport exit, Miss Mobley stopped again and said:

"And my goodness, Mr. Skinner, what on earth are you doing here?"

And Mr. James Skinner, of Philadelphia, president of the Philco Corp., said:

"Why I had to come here on business and saw all these people and just suspected there was some celebrity arriving!"

ANOTHER STOP

Before the top beauty of America could get into a waiting car—flanked by mounted police—to take her into the Dinkler Plaza, there was another stop. This time a little boy, named

"Mama, isn't she a beautiful lady?" asked the little boy.

Once seated in a car, Miss America had some very good comments to make on this magic carpet tour she is doing.

"I think traveling is one of the best ways to learn people, and to know how to handle them. You meet so many and really they are all nice and kind, but everybody is different. When you meet so many you have a broader outlook on life."

"I try to write home, even if it's just a post card with 'love' written on it, just about everyday. The family will know I am all right."

The pretty young girl, wearing a two-piece cotton suit and a bulky wool jacket, will appear here in her first fashion show Wednesday from 4 until 5:30 p.m. at Haverly's downtown store. Her appearance, the first in the city as well as the state is in behalf of her two national sponsors, Philco and the Joseph Bancroft Co. manufacturers of Everglaze fabrics.

Tobe Says

There's New Shape, Fabrics In Beautiful Evening Shoes

Evening shoes grow more beautiful every season—in shape, in material, and in decoration. Some of the new evening shoes—especially those I saw in Paris shown with the couture collections—were breathtakingly beautiful.

First the shape—and although there are still more pumps than any other shape, they are cut lower all around so that they look much lighter. There are a lot of little straps too, some tied with bows—a very young feminine look. The newest have long toes that are squared off at the front. And the fabrics! Beautiful brocades and cut velvets to match the evening gowns with which they are worn; fabulous jeweled embroideries and, most extravagant of all perhaps but utterly simple to look at shoes made of layers of tulle.

Beware of Favor Offer By 'Sharp' Salesmen

Q. We were recently offered an opportunity to have the screens and roof on our porch repaired for a good price if we would agree to let the work be used for demonstration purposes by the contractor. Just what is involved in such a deal? Mrs. S. W., New York, N.Y.

A. If you were solicited by a door-to-door salesman, and if the sales talk you got from him left you with the impression that the contractor was doing you a favor by repairing the porch, then watch out. The "demonstration" line is only one tactic which has been widely used in the past by a breed of fast-talking, sharp-dealing salesmen to close deals with homeowners eager for a bargain.

Many such salesmen represent itinerant contractors who produce shoddy or worthless services at a price which seems low, but is much too high for the kind of work they do. What they are really good at is convincing homeowners that they need repairs that may not be necessary at all.

They may offer, too, to give you a cash rebate for other business you may get them with your neighbors, or perhaps they tell you that their work is done on a trial basis. About the only thing you're likely to get out of such a deal is unfriendly neighbors, who will not look kindly on the fact that you steered the gyp artists to them. And there is nothing "trial" about such deals, either. They are outright sales, and you're stuck with them whether satisfied or not.

Another favorite approach is to claim or suggest that the materials to be used are approved by the government. Of course there can be no such endorsement. You pick the contractor, and only you can determine whether the work is satisfactory.

Your best protection is to deal only with reputable, responsible contractors, most of whom wouldn't even consider coming to your door with such an "opportunity." If the firm represented by the salesman is unknown to you, check the Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce. In some areas, too, the legitimate house-repair contractors have organized to uphold honest practices. Such associations are happy to give you information about the firm you're dealing with.

Nosy Aunt Moves In On Teen

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

Could you please give me some advice on a very uncomfortable situation? Just recently my aunt came to stay with us. I have nothing against her being here, but she goes through all my dresser drawers and "straightens" them up so I can never find anything. After I make my bed in the mornings (the way my mother wants it) my aunt remakes it the way SHE thinks it should be.

Then I get in trouble with Mother because it isn't made the right way. This is just part of the trouble! It's getting to the point where I can't even sit down to write a letter without my aunt looking over my shoulder to see what I'm writing!

It sounds like Auntie is much too nosy and I think your mother is the person to solve this problem. My advice is to talk the situation over with Mom. She, in turn, should be willing (diplomatically) to explain to your aunt that while her "efforts" are probably meant to be helpful, you would rather take care of your own room and are accustomed to having more privacy.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

This problem is not mine. It concerns a friend of mine. He got himself engaged and he has only just recently turned 16! The girl is 18. He told me that he just likes to show off to everyone because she is two years older. She is a very nice girl but he two-times her a lot. Do you think this is fair to her? What is your opinion of this engagement?

Your friend must feel very unsure of himself if he will even go so far as to become engaged just to bolster his ego. He certainly has a lot of growing up to do.

Your description of this situation shows plainly that this boy is not only too young to be engaged—he is also more immature than his 16 years would indicate.

Girl's Dowry Is Her Ability To Work

A cute little teen-ager I know who left high school to get married and is now out job-hunting so she and her husband and their 7-month-old son can afford a home—or at least an apartment—of their own, eased off her high heels and talked to me of marriage.

"If you get a chance," she said, "tell every girl you know who's thinking about getting married to wait until she has some education and knows how to earn a living. I'd still marry my husband if I had it to do over but I'd wait until I was a little older and knew how to do something to help him!"

Her situation is identical with many other girls who have allowed themselves to be swept into matrimony and motherhood at a very young age. The question to work or not to work, which is being widely bruited about these days, is simply rhetorical for these youngsters. The young wife has to work if they are to move away from their parents. There's not room in the in-laws' small cottage for two families and the young husband, an untrained teen-ager himself, may not be able to support his family singlehandedly for some years to come.

After the girl had rested her feet, which are still more accustomed to loafers than to the career girl's heels, and had redone her face and gone, I picked up a book I was reading about women. It's an old one called, "Women's Life and Work in the Southern Colonies" by Julia Cherry Spruill and it has some interesting and amusing glimpses of our founding mothers. The chapter on courtship and marriage is one to jerk you into line if you've been thinking that modern marriage is in a bad way.

Modern marriage is a pillar of stability founded on the rock-like foundation of true love compared to the institution as it was known in the American colonies in the seventeenth century. Nowadays a girl's dowry really is her ability to work. In those days she needed the cold cash or the real estate and it was expected that a man of sense would be as hardheaded about arranging a matrimonial alliance as in any business transaction.

There's a charming letter from Charles Carroll of Annapolis to his son suggesting that he take a wife who should be "virtuous, sensible, good-natured, complaisant, neat and cheerful in disposition; of good size, well-proportioned, and free from hereditary disorders; and of the same social rank and religion" as he. The matter of her fortune which "in Prudence should not be overlooked" was not to outweigh that of her character but he advised, "if you should condescend to take the woman unequal to you in point of fortune I hope the inequality will be compensated in point of family, by her virtue and the other good qualities of her mind and person."

There are many examples where the ladies were fickle and were sued for breach of promise. Captain John Posey, neighbor and debtor of George Washington, was perfectly shameless in a letter he wrote Washington after the first Mrs. Posey died. He said he could have "satisfied all my arrears" by marrying a widow who had large sums of cash and pretty good estate" but, "She is as thick as she is high and gets drunk at least three or four times a week." Under the influence of whisky this prosperous widow had a "villiant sperrit" and since the first Mrs. Posey was also a shrew, the captain decided it was easier to cope with his creditors himself than to "Run the Reak Again."

Of course divorce wasn't a problem then. Death dissolved marriages faster than any Hollywood divorce court. Three marriages by one person were not at all unusual, some made four, five and even six ventures. And they remarried with a speed that would today be regarded as unseemly. In fact, they remind me of a mountain friend of ours who says when he dies he wants his wife to marry again but hopes she will wait "a decent interval—say about two weeks."

HALLOWEEN POUF FOR BAL MASQUE
Joan Ferchaud Masked In Gown of Red Nylon NetROWS OF RUFFLED APRICOT NYLON TULLE
Cile Davidson Peeks Through Black Satin MaskCharity Style Show Will Unmask
Gowns for Halloween Balls

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER

Atlanta Constitution Fashion Editor

Just a few hours hence, little ghosts will be out ringing doorbells in everything from mama's best bed sheets to dad's black overcoat.

For it will be the night of goblins and witches and anyone opening a door may be frozen in her tracks at some of the masked faces.

But Halloween is not just for the young. Once the children are tucked into their beds with their bags full of treats under their pillows mothers and fathers are apt to be out and up to some tricks of their own.

Some may trip the light fantastic at a Bal Masque complete with masks of their own and it's this theme that the auxiliary of the free cancer home, Our Lady of Perpetual Help, has chosen for their annual fund-raising fashion show.

The luncheon show will be at the Cherokee Town Club tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. and will feature evening gowns with Halloween masks cleverly executed to harmonize with the dress in a charming rather than frightening way.

Typical of the showing will be a strapless dress of net draped in rows and rows of tiny horizontal tuckings of net across the bodice and swelling into a great pouf at the hip over a long skirt drawn close with a satin band. Its harmonizing mask is fashioned of pink satin with an ostrich plume.

For the masquerader who prefers her gown slim there will be a red peau de sole with a bodice made of minute flowers. It has narrow straps and the skirt falls from a modified barrel into a peg skirt from a crossed midriff. Yards and yards of the lush peau de sole is fashioned into a matching stole that can be unwrapped to show the flowered bodice for a pleasant Halloween surprise.

Another surprise could be the gown that looks like a shirt and skirt but is actually a one-piece affair. The shirt bodice is made of champagne satin and meets a long gold satin skirt at the high mark that is the Empire line with a wide contour belt. An autumn rose is smartly planted at the belt line. This is the type dress that everyone dreams of leading the life for which it was made.

For a breath-taking entrance to any Bal Masque, there will be a voluminous gown fashioned of row after row of ruffled nylon tulle. Great breadth of tulle is caught at the waist in the front and swept to the back in a regal drape and anchored near the middle of the skirt with two huge flowers. The color is apricot and looks especially Halloween accented with long black gloves and a black satin eye mask with a switch of black feathers.

Another feature of the fashion show will be a whole sequence of creations in the lilac to deep purple family. There will be members in suits, coats, ensembles, cocktail dresses and ball gowns.

You'll see real live goblins, too, in a whimsical Halloween ballet and you will be given a fashionable idea of holiday wear from Halloween on.

For shopping information on the fashions to be shown, call JA. 2-5050, Ext. 394, or send a self-addressed post card to the Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

As I See It

Is House Spooky? Kill It, Get a Horse

By PAUL JONES

Has your neighbor ever offered to tell you how to build a fence around your house or what shrubs to use in landscaping your property or what remedy to use in attacking a common cold?

I suppose that advice is one thing that is easy to get in this cold world.

But I doubt if you ever got as much free advice as did James Herrmann, the Seaford, Long Island, fellow who attracted widespread attention early this year when household objects began flying mysteriously through the rooms of his house.

Mr. Herrmann got some 300 unsolicited letters from folks who had theories about what was causing the unguided missiles to take off in the weird display of flying furniture. Some even offered remedies. Many of the letters were as eerie and as ghostly as was the actual story of what happened to Mr. Herrmann.

And like most of the advice that you and I get from sympathetic people who feel they know more about our business than we do, Mr. Herrmann was untouched by the suggestions, remedies or theories which were offered or expounded.

Here's the kind of advice the harried Mr. Herrmann, an ex-marine, received:

"Kill the house," one writer commanded.

"Buy a horse," another suggested.

"Burn sulphur in every room," advised still another. "If it's Ghostly (sic) it will go away."

IT DIDN'T and the avalanche of letters continued. One writer suggested that Herrmann unfold his "Third Eye."

Another, being more practical, advised Herrmann to glue all the furniture to the floors.

Some wacky individual wrote

Opening lead: Diamond 2.

Declarer left nothing to chance in today's hand. His safety play was a well calculated maneuver that netted him the game and rubber.

The bidding was sound and against the four heart contract, West led the deuce of diamonds. East, after cashing the king and ace, got out with a heart.

Declarer drew the trumps in three rounds and cashed the ace of spades and led the eight. When West played low, declarer ducked in dummy and when the trick held, he was assured of 10 tricks.

The kibitzer's gallery immediately became active. To one it seemed that West must have inadvertently exposed his hand to South's view.

Another upbraided West for not having covered the 8 of spades, though it will be seen that such action would have availed the defense nothing for this would automatically give the declarer four spade tricks—all he needed to bring the total to 10.

Still another inquired of South how he knew that West had both J-10 of spades. South confessed that he knew no such thing. What he did know was that if he permitted the 8 to run he could not lose the hand.

Fire Ant Venom, Cancer Link Eyed

Fire ants have venom that differs from that of other stinging insects. The venom is a nerve poison that is highly toxic to many insects except to other fire ants. It has antibiotic properties against bacteria and its effect on cancer cells is being studied.

A group from Louisiana State University obtained this venom by holding the ants with forceps and stroking the abdomen with a fine capillary tube until the stinger was everted.

To collect the droplets of venom in the capillary tube, the procedure had to be carried out under a dissecting microscope.

Fire ants are becoming a scourge in Southeastern United States. They damage crops and livestock and attack humans. When stung, the area becomes red and swollen and burns like billy-ho. Shortly thereafter a small pustule forms in the center. Some individuals develop fever and those who are sensitive to the bite encounter allergic reactions.

Children generally behave in certain ways at certain ages. Their progress can be measured through tests of development that show whether the motor and sensory functions of the body are progressing in an orderly fashion.

Many parents do not realize there is a difference between physical development and I. Q. readings. Youngsters with low scores on one may have high scores on the other, and vice versa.

A scientific report from Scandinavia concludes that pony hair-dos are hard on the tresses. Bald spots appear in Eskimo women who comb their hair back with force and tie it in a pigtail. European girls with ponytails lose hair along the border of the scalp. This hair-do cannot be blamed for male baldness; receding hair lines are common, even though not subjected to the slightest pull.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Some hobby or some daily task that is not too exacting is necessary in the retirement years. Keep the forward and expectant look and do not reminisce too much about the past."

—Advice Column Quote.

Of all the blessings we receive . . . One of the greatest, I believe . . . Is being able to recall . . . The pleasant things, however small . . . And being able to forget . . . Those things by which we are upset.

A man grows mellow, with the years . . . Remembering, almost in tears . . . The farm house and the apple pies . . . But he forgets the swarms of flies . . . That zoomed in like a fighting jet . . . And settled where the pies were set.

He will remember how the logs . . . Burned in the fireplace; and the dogs . . . That sat beside him, near his feet . . . But he forgets most of the heat . . . Went up the chimney of the shack . . . And how he suffered from the lack . . . Of indoor plumbing when the chill . . . Of winter lay upon the hill.

The good old days, the good old days . . . We miss them in a thousand ways . . . But if we really tell the truth . . . All we really miss is Youth.

the spades would be good, which together with five hearts and a club would give him his 10 tricks.

On the other hand if he went up with the queen and East showed out, the contract would be at the mercy of the club fit. True enough, if spades break, South's caution costs him 30 points. But that is a fair enough price to pay for complete safety.

Without Sidewalks,
The Tension Is High

The movement to get sidewalks at DeKalb County schools has my complete sympathy, and here is why:

The 15 minutes it takes for the two little children in our house to walk the three blocks to grammar school is one of low voices and tension. This may seem strange to those for whom the tension lessens the minute the children are out of the house.

You see, we are listening for the scream of a siren.

And the reason we are listening for that sound is that last year our youngest boy, walking on the way to school, was hit by a car—an accident caused wholly because he didn't have a sidewalk to walk on and had no choice but to walk in the street. The driver of the car was momentarily blinded by the rising sun, and that moment was enough—our boy was hit.

When the sirens sounded that morning, my wife and I paid no attention. Why, nothing could happen to our boy. But it did. After the sirens came the phone call from a good lady who said that our son was hit, but not hurt badly. I took off for the school in my car, leaving my wife, still in dressing gown, almost in a state of shock.

I found my boy sitting on the curb, both shoes knocked off, and his collie dog licking his face. The same lady who called had placed a blanket around my 7-year-old. The DeKalb police were there. An ambulance had been called. "What can I do?" asked the police captain. "Go get my wife before the ambulance gets here," I said. I knew she would be dressed by that time. He went and got her and she arrived at the same time the siren-wailing ambulance did. I was wrong about the shock, I saw, as she was calmer than I.

We took my boy to Grady, and later to Piedmont Hospital. He had five broken ribs, one broken vertebrae, and a big round bruise, headlight-size, right in the middle of his back. The injuries, though painful, proved not permanently damaging, and Tommy was back in school in two weeks. In six weeks he could ride his bicycle again, and was pronounced well by the good doctors.

Do you wonder why we listen for the length of time it takes the children to get to their classes?

The tension is just too great sometimes, and we take them in the car—helping create the traffic jams that increase the danger to the walking children. And the solution: sidewalks near the school, where child traffic is thickest.

Safety-Minded Collie

Tommy's dog, Bess, was with him on the way to school. She seemed to think the accident was her fault. Tommy's first day back in school, his mother went to meet him when school was out. She could find him nowhere. After an extensive search, she found him right by the door to the side entrance to the school, but he couldn't move.

Bess had him backed up against the wall and was leaning her big, collie body against him, holding him there in spite of his yelling at her and his tugging on her collar.

She wasn't going to let him get anywhere near that road.

YOUR STARS TODAY

Daily Guide—A rather hectic day in the main, with many little irritations that could tempt one to increase the friction with some aggressive reaction.

The Taureans should hold their fire if fired upon.

In the afternoon and evening the moon will be in Gemini so some of the force will scatter, making the late hours difficult for driving, writing, talking without friction.

Tomorrow there is a mixed bag of influences with the afternoon more constructive, and some artistic inspiration or glamor in the very late hours.

Happy Birthday, Scorpio! You are under very favorable influences at present and should be able to make considerable headway in the next few months and in through August to October next year.

Do not take rash action for the sake of expediency, especially in the next few weeks.

Know Your CountyEarly U.S. Leaders Came From Crawford County

Crawford County, in central Georgia, was created from Houston County in 1822, ranking 55th in order of creation. It was named for William H. Crawford, who twice represented Georgia in the Senate, served as secretary of the treasury under two administrations and narrowly missed becoming President after a protracted contest in the House of Representatives.

Knoxville, the county seat, was named for Gen. Henry Knox, leader in the Revolutionary War for whom the Tennessee city was named.

On the courthouse square is a monument to Joanna Troutman (later Mrs. Green Vinson) who designed and made the first Lone Star Flag of Texas. She presented it to a group of Georgians en route to help Texas fight for its independence in 1835. The colors were reversed (to white star on a blue background) and it was adopted as the official state flag. In 1913, she was reinterred in the Texas state cemetery.

Ft. Lawrence, which has disappeared, was established in Crawford County to protect the old Indian Agency that stood on the east bank of the Flint River.

Crawford County covers 313 square miles and it is tied with Johnson as the 95th largest county. Part of Crawford went to make Upson County. There were 568 farms in the county in 1954. Over half the farm income came from sale of fruits and nuts and the county ranked fourth in the number of peach trees in Georgia in 1954.

The county has a population of 5,500 (1957 estimate), ranking 142nd in population (1950 census). Knoxville had a population of 308 in the 1950 census. Highways running through the county are U.S. 941 and 80, and Ga. 7, 137, 22, 42 and 96. Roberta also is in the county.

Tomorrow: Crisp County.

West Africans Want U.S. Aid, Clement Says

All countries in West Africa except Senegal would welcome American help, particularly help from Negro Americans.

This is the opinion of President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University after spending six weeks in Senegal, Ghana, Liberia and Nigeria.

Dr. Clement told an Atlanta University forum that he found that all of these countries are making remarkable progress both in development of their economies and their educational systems, but that they were in need of sympathetic technical help, and economic assistance.

A major problem which faces these countries is whether the economic development will be controlled locally for the benefit of the country or by outsiders who will take the money out of the country, Dr. Clement said.

A Real Pro

Harvey Hester, the Smyrna restaurant proprietor who once served up a short order of pro football in Miami, was talking Monday night with a fellow who helped boot the ill-fated Seahawks out of existence.

Lou Groza and Hester were reminiscing about the late All-America Conference before the Atlanta Quarterbacks entered their weekly huddle. All of the Quarterbacks got a kick out of the Toe's entertaining talk. But Hester won't ever forget the disenchanted evening when he first met Groza 13 falls ago.

Outlar

Groza, a living legend in the pro fraternity, made his debut against Hester's hirelings. He kicked three field goals and five extra points as the Browns pummeled the Seahawks, 44-0. His golden toe has since accounted for more than 900 points. Though Don Hutson still holds the NFL record, Groza's combined output in the All-America and NFL constitutes a professional record.

"Harvey said he remembered me kicking a 54-yard field goal that night," Groza grinned and remarked, "but it must have just looked that long from his side of the bench. It's not in the book."

Seventeen Winners and One Loser

Groza's amazing feats partially account for the fact that, in 18 years of football, he has played on only one losing team. He played four years at Martins Ferry (Ohio) High, freshman football at Ohio State, and he's now in his 13th season with the Browns.

Paul Brown, the fabulous head coach of the Cleveland Browns, was coaching at Massillon when he first heard of Groza, an all-state performer in football and basketball.

When Brown moved to Ohio State he extended a scholarship offer to the Martins Ferry ace. Groza played freshman football for the Buckeyes and once booted a 50-yard field goal against Pitt. Then Groza went into the Army; Paul Brown moved to Great Lakes, then into Cleveland to establish his famous empire.

Groza never returned to Ohio State to play football, joining the Browns when he was discharged from the service. He did return each summer until he picked up a diploma.

"I've been there ever since," Groza said, "and it's really been a pleasure to play for Paul Brown. He's truly a remarkable man. We've had only one losing season in Cleveland. No, I don't think you could single out our greatest team; we've had too many good ones."

Groza, now 34 and still active as an offensive tackle, has no retirement plans. "I'll leave that up to Coach Brown," he said. "Maybe I can stay on as a field goal specialist, but I don't know. I play for fun now."

It is true, of course, that Groza doesn't have to play for funds. He's a successful laundry operator and insurance salesman in Cleveland. He harbors no coaching ambitions unless Brown wants to retain him in the Browns' family.

Groza Scores On and Off the Field

When a professional guest is in the house, it's customary to inquire about dirty football. Some of the Quarterbacks had reminded Groza that Atlanta was the site where Otto Graham had unleashed the charges heard around the NFL.

"I'm not going to say that we don't have any dirty players," Groza said. "But you check the colleges and high schools and you won't find the percentage very much in our favor. When a player is caught, he's tossed out of the game and fined. So we don't have much of it."

In a sport where tempers flare and fists often fly, Groza has a fantastic combat record. He hits hard but clean, a testimonial documented by only one fight in 13 seasons.

Lou first became interested in kicking when an older brother, Frank, was the placement expert at Martins Ferry. Frank gave Lou a few pointers, and the youngster started doing what comes naturally. He's been doing it ever since to the dismay of pro coaches.

Groza was very proud of the basketball fame his younger brother, Alex, achieved as an All-America at Kentucky. Then came the shattering scandal. Alex now helps their mother operate a restaurant at Martins Ferry.

I didn't mention Alex, but a magazine writer did recently, and I like what Lou told the man from Sport: "I try to look at it like this," he said. "You figure life could be like a football game. All right. If you fumble in the end, you're through, but if you fumble in the first quarter, there's still time to recover, to come back. I figure Alex fumbled in the first quarter. He's young."

Jack Ranen, a transplanted Atlantan from Ohio and a close friend of Paul Brown, told me that I would meet quite a guy when Lou Groza came to town. And Lou Groza is quite a guy . . . a real pro with class, on and off the field.

Plainsmen Put Winning Pride Up Against 'Gainesville Jinx'

15 of First 22 Haven't Lost

By MICKEY LOGUE

A football pride that has never come before a fall will be Florida's most dangerous adversary Saturday.

Even the "Gainesville jinx" and great Gator linemen will have difficulty making losers of Auburn players who have never lost.

These include 15 of Coach Ralph Jordan's first 22 troops.

Five starters and 10 second-unit men have never performed for Auburn in a failing varsity football cause.

Alternate captain and left half Tommy Lorino alone has started a losing game for the Tigers. In 25 first-string appearances, Lorino has helped win 21 battles, lose three and tie one, a notable record for anybody's pigskin career.

Auburn has traveled unbeaten in its last 19 outings, most against the cream of Southern football. Georgia Tech applied the lone 7-7 blemish.

Outstanding linemen, talented backs, superb coaching, etc., have contributed to the nation's longest unbeaten span. But nothing has been more vital than a winning spirit, or pride, developed among the Tiger ranks.

Nix also has never called the signals in defeat.

TWO WOLVERINES FACE GAMBLING CHARGES

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—The first string fullback and the basketball captain of the University of Michigan were arrested Tuesday along with five other students in connection with an investigation of football gambling on the university campus.

Charged with engaging in an illegal occupation in connection with gambling—a misdemeanor carrying a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and $100 fine—were:

Jack Lewis, 21, Chicago, varsity basketball captain; Tony Rio, 21, Chicago, first string football fullback; Carl M. Rseman, 21, Detroit, associate sports editor of the Michigan Daily, campus newspaper; Nick E. Mitea, 21, Ecorse, Mich.; Durwood J. Collins, Houston, Tex.; John Miller, Detroit, and Mike Dodgson, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Detective Lt. George Stauch said the students were charged in connection with the circulation of football spot cards on the campus. He estimated the alleged gambling racket amounted to about $10,000 a week among students.

Trainer Sam Richwine administered field treatment and dispatched Hansen to medical for patch work.

"He received a V-shaped slash from someone's cleats," said Richwine. "Movement seems unimpaired, and I think he'll be ready for Alabama Saturday though the injury will have to be padded heavily."

Only minutes earlier coaches, from head man Wally Butts on down the line, marveled at Hansen's improvement in movies of the Kentucky game.

As in the Vanderbilt game, the rugged Canadian was called upon early to replace ailing Nat Dye. This time, however, he bore no resemblance to the Hansen who did not receive a favorable report at Nashville. His defense was superb, quickly verified in the shutout of the strong Wildcats.

"It was Hansen's best defensive performance of the season," said line coach Cal Stoll. The observation was seconded by Butts.

Should Dye and Hansen be crippled for the game at Tuscaloosa, the situation at right tackle certainly becomes critical.

Richwine looked on the brighter side. "Hansen should be ready to go, and Dye is coming along nicely. There's no reason why he shouldn't be available for at least some duty."

Bumps, bruises and cuts were major concerns at Ag Hill on Wednesday. Medical charts listed:

Second-string fullback Cicero Lucas, bruised shoulder; third-line FB Bobby Joe Galbreath, bad knee; Nat Dye, sprained ankle; Bobby Walden, virus; end Jack Shamblin, bum knee.

All, with exception of Shamblin, are expected to put in some combat time. Lucas had his best offensive afternoon of the year in the Kentucky game and now has averaged 4.8 yards on 25 rushes.

"We can't risk much rough work this week," said Butts. "Right now Sapp is the only healthy fullback we have and we can't chance getting him hurt."

Tuesday's session was based on the assumption that Alabama, upset conqueror of Mississippi State last week, will quick kick, punt and shop for mistakes. The Bulldogs worked on adjusting to surprise kicks and protecting the defensive air pockets.

The game at Tuscaloosa, homecoming for Alabama, should develop into quite a foot game. Walden leads the nation with a spectacular 47.4 average, while Gary O'Steen of the Tide is not far behind with 43.2. A distinction must be made since Walden operates from punt formation and O'Steen has the surprise element going with him on quick kicks.

Tech Shifts Baum To Plug Guard Slot

Holds Fort For Watkins

By BERT PRATHER

In a move to bolster the injury-riddled left guard position for Saturday's traditional battle with beefy Duke at Durham, N.C.,

Georgia Tech headmaster Bobby Dodd Tuesday announced shifting of center Phil Baum to the post.

For the Memphis, Tenn., senior it will not be a promotion since he's already the first offensive pivotman. But it will mean more heft at this spot, which may be sorely needed against the burly Blue Devils, who average something like 220 up front.

Both regular offensive and defensive guards, Bob (Rocky) Stone and captain Foster Watkins, are nursing injuries. Stone, who reinjured his knee Saturday against Southern Methodist, is not only counted out of the Duke scrap but may not be ready for Clemson here a week from Saturday.

Watkins' badly bruised shoulder places him on the Saturday doubtful list, but trainer Buck Andel says the Yellow Jacket captain may snap back. Foster, for one, isn't planning on missing the game.

Leon Tye mans the No. 1 offensive left guard slot.

Baum, who lettered at guard in 1955, was out during the '56 and '57 seasons with a back injury which he received near the end of the 1955 campaign. In fact, Tech coaches believed his football career was at an end.

But Phil, who stands even six feet and weighs 207, came to coach Dodd before spring practice and told him that his back was well and he would like to give it another try. Of course, his progress was slow. He was a bit rusty from a two-year layoff, but he came on strong this fall and moved into the number one offensive center slot after the Tennessee game.

Assistant head coach Ray Graves, who tutors the linemen, said, "Baum is a good rugged boy. Since he's played guard before, he is more familiar with the assignments than anyone else we could switch there. He's a good linebacker and we feel he'll do a good job at guard."

With Baum's shift, Dan Smith, 202-pound junior from Griffin, moves back to top offensive pivotman.

With defensive quarterback Doug Veazey still favoring an ailing ankle, Jack Baker, top Red Devil quarterback, was suited out in varsity togs Tuesday and worked with the third unit. However, it's a good bet that all quarterbacking duties Saturday

MGC CAGER FIGHTS FOR LIFE

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Jack Abernathy bounced off the spring board, executed a jackknife and dived into tragedy.

He broke his neck, landing head-first on a swimmer.

The accident occurred the middle of September. And the Middle Georgia College basketball star, lying motionless in a Macon hospital, hasn't moved a muscle since.

For three weeks it was a matter of life or death. A recent six-hour operation relieved some of the pressure on his spinal cord.

But it brought little encouragement to his mother, Mrs. Sid Holland, and countless thousands of middle Georgians who watched Jack grow up in Hawkinsville and become a student leader on and off the court at the Cochran school.

Meanwhile a corps of specialists checks his daily progress. They're searching for some sign he won't be paralyzed the rest of his life.

Best news they can give Hawkinsville—a grief-stricken community where Jack grew up—is that, as a prominent neurosurgeon put it, "where there's life, there's hope."

But there's one other factor in Jack's favor. He's an experienced warrior in the battle of life. And his corner's crammed to the brim with believers that he'll triumph in this greatest fight of all.

The picture, 6-3, 194-pound athlete didn't have time for sports at Hawkinsville High School. He worked to help his mother. Then came a two-year hitch in the Navy where the 22-year-old's natural athletic ability came to the fore and resulted in several service all-star selections.

Armed with an honorable discharge and a quest for knowledge, Jack enrolled at Middle Georgia last year, was a success at the start in the classroom and became one of the state's more proficient point makers when winter and basketball rolled around.

As a man, his coach, Cliff Coggins, had this to say of him the other day: "He's the finest boy I ever coached. He's vice-president of the student body, an honor student, active in a prayer group and a truly great athlete."

And in Hawkinsville where they know him best, his condition is the constant concern of every citizen. . . . all 3,342 whites, Negroes, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Catholics and Jews who have poured out their hearts as only members of a small community can.

Thursday night, a football game will be played for his benefit between Hawkinsville and Willingham High B teams.

All proceeds go to a steadily climbing hospital bill. Officials will serve without pay.

But still the venture can't hope to gain more than $2,000. A spokesman for the Hawkinsville Lions Club, the coordinating agency for all donations, said the other day, "His hospital bill is running five and six hundred dollars every week."

Around-the-clock nurses . . . X-rays . . . operational expenses . . . special treatments and tests . . . special equipment . . . the expenses continue to pile up. And they'll keep on piling up for a long time to come.

They'll keep on piling up just like Jack will keep on fighting.

Rebs Bootin' Field Goals

From Press Dispatches

United Press International named Alabama's Gary O'Steen, a quick-kicking halfback, as its Southeastern Conference Back of the Week. O'Steen was mainly responsible for Alabama's 9-7 upset of Mississippi State.

O'Steen's punting kept State pined down most of the afternoon. His quick kicks ranged from 43 to 67 yards and one punt went out at the State two-yard line. His running, 66 yards, set up 'Bama's touchdown and field goal.

Other backs nominated were Georgia's Theron Sapp, LSU's Billy Cannon, Ole Miss' Bobby

of injured Billy Majors. . . . College Park, Ga., halfback Charley Gay was on the Furman injury list with a gash in his right hand that required 14 stitches. His availability for the Penn State game is problematical.

MIDWEST: Center Jim Andreotti worked with Northwestern, but remained a doubtful starter for the Ohio State game. . . . Marist's Ken Adamson was moved up to No. 1 left guard in the Notre Dame scheme of things and Georgia Iza to quarterback. . . . Gene Sisinyak jumped to Michigan's No. 1 fullback post after former No. 1 man, Tony Rio, was dropped from the squad because of gambling charges. . . . Minnesota lost its last experienced back as quarterback Jim Reese fractured his hand. . . . Halfback Don Clark was called "very questionable" for the Northwestern game by Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes.

EAST: Princeton moved injured Dan Sachs back into the tailback slot. . . . Yale learned halfback Herb Hallas will be ready for duty this week. . . . Lee Horschman was named Dartmouth's No. 1 left tackle in drills for Yale.

Rebel Strategy: Live Modern, Use Airplanes

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—University of Mississippi supporters Tuesday unleashed an airborne attack in the war of nerves preceding Saturday's gridiron clash here of the unbeaten Ole Miss and Louisiana State University football teams.

LSU's campus was plastered with printed broadsides reading, "Go to Hell LSU and stay there." They were signed, "Sincerely, Colonel Rebel."

The pamphlets were distributed over the campus by an airplane. The attack was so swift that few students at LSU saw the craft and did not know of its presence until the leaflets began floating down.

The propaganda bombardment came while LSU students were burning an effigy of United Press International, protesting UPI's ranking LSU fifth in its national rating of football powers. The Associated Press poll rated LSU first in the nation.

Quarterback Charley Britt is averaging five yards per rush or pass; soph left half Fred Brown, 7.8; junior right half Don Soberdash, 7.0; senior fullback Theron Sapp, 5.0.

"Alabama has mastered the kicking game, and they're still playing that hard-nose football," said Butts. "They'll try to force a mistake and take advantage of it. And they might try to hit a home run with the passing game."

"The way I see it, it's an even game."

They have only been behind twice—against Mississippi State last year and Maryland last week. Both days they rallied and won.

Ortiz Stops Charnley

LONDON (AP)—Lightweight contender Carlos Ortiz of New York ended a long streak of American boxing defeats abroad by outpointing British champion Dave Charnley in a 10-round bout at Harringay Arena Tuesday.

The 22-year-old Puerto Rican-born fighter opened cuts over both of Charnley's eyes in the fifth and sixth rounds and won handily. Ortiz weighed 135½, Charnley, 134½.

Ortiz is ranked fourth contender by both the NBA and Ring Magazine. Charnley, 23, is ranked third by the Ring and seventh by the NBA.

WITH THE DON RYANS, BOWLING'S JUST ONE BIG HAPPY FAMILY SPORT

KEGLER'S CORNER

By PAUL ATKINSON

This is a way of saying that you probably won't find a more enthusiastic group backing Atlanta bowling than the Don Ryans.

There's papa Don, who bowls Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. And there's mama Mary Ryan, who bowls Wednesday. And there are the oldest of four girls, Bobbie (10), Pattie (9) and Mickie (8), who bowl in the bantams. Last—but not least—there's Jackie, not yet seven, but who already is learning to bowl.

Papa Don is quite proficient at this sport. His 253 scratch and 274 handicap were highs in the Tuesday City Tenpin. He carries averages ranging from 168 to 172.

Mama Mary bowls for the Fred R. Smith team in the Hi-Ladies League. "My scores," she says with a laugh, "go from a 19 on one awful night to a 161 that won our team a championship."

And the youngsters? "Well," says Mary, "they go something like 62 or 66. One of 'em will come back and say, 'Mama, they just didn't oil those alleys today.' But they are learning."

Don, one time a member of the Ryan Brothers comedy team, started his bowling early. "We would go bowling up in the Midwest after we got off from the shows," he explains.

The comedy team broke up in the early 40s because the travel was too much on the members' families. Now they're just bowling along.

NOTEBOOKING: O'Neill's Bowlerama's top eight who advance to the finals this weekend in the BPA tournament are Ben Downs, 2,992; Ralph Brunt, 2,932; John Hamacheck, 2,886; George Brunt, 2,855; Sam O'Neill, 2,845; Buddy Middlebrooks, 2,844; Gray Hammond, 2,838, and Karl Bartholomew, 2,814. They'll open a round robin Saturday at 2:30 p.m. . . . O'Neill's has named a team of Sam O'Neill Jr., Karl Bartholomew, Bob Kerr, Alex Strickland and George Arnold to suffice with Bowl-O-Matic in a special benefit match for the Retarded Children's Assn. It is hoped that Georgia Tech coach Bobby Dodd, chairman of the association, will be on hand for the Nov. 15 rolling. . . . Building Department: New lanes, numbering 24, going in at Savannah, and an additional 20 at Columbus as bowling continues its growth around the state. . . . A prep bowling league is in the talking stage. Bowl-O-Matic officials have advanced the idea to principals at O'Keefe, Grady, North Fulton and Northside high schools, with the hope that it could be expanded to take in the whole 3-AAA region. This same idea was advanced by this author last year, and it certainly deserves attention from the powers-that-be.

CASCADE BOWLING LANES have been sanctioned by the Atlanta Bowling Assn. All told, there are 176 sanctioned teams, according to ABA secretary Arnie Arnston, and more are near to being sanctioned. . . . Bowl-O-Matic Lanes are going with a Pot-O-Gold Tournament in which a mystery series is worth $50 in cash. This tournament gives the average bowler a shot at some money and merchandise. . . . Scoreboarding: Guy Bell's 621 and 246 game were tops in the Atlanta Major Traveling League. Southern Bowler Magazine leads Southern Latex by two points in the standings. . . . Gray Hammond's 630 three-gamer, including a high game of 242, led Southern Bowler's Singles Classic. Buddy Middlebrooks had a 605 and Ralph Brunt a 600. Ben Downs leads in Petersen points, Ralph Brunt second and Middlebrooks third. . . . Gene Meason (541), Don Clary (536) and T. P. Chandler (535) were best in the Sinclair SE Division League, and Betty Vineyard's 183 led the girls. . . . Hal Cram's 612 handicap and Ken Klein's 268 handicap topped 'em in the Broadview Tenpin League. . . . Lois Arnston's 538 and 293 were best in the Broadview Bowlerette group. . . . Underwood's 16-8 report leads the Bowlerama League, with Serio-mans and Jiffy Grill second at 15-9. . . . Southern Bowler leading in Northside Tenpin group at 23-9 with Holiday Pools second at 20-11½. Joe Robinson at 572 and Gray Hammond with a 564 led scoring Monday. . . . Jim Respass had a brilliant 233-232-642 last week in the City Tenpinning, with Ralph Brunt at 604 and LeRoy Slout at 601. Don Ryan, of course, had his 253 individual gamer.

Halas 'Poker' Gets Break

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—William G. Dunn, the San Francisco 49er fan who took a poke Sunday at Chicago Bear Coach George Halas, got a break today from a judge.

Municipal Judge Edward O'Day dismissed a contempt court brought after the 34-year-old Palo Alto salesman showed up Monday and falsely identified himself as an attorney.

"I was seeking to avoid publicity," Dunn said, "and in turn I only got more."

Judge O'Day ordered him to reappear in court Friday, but indicated there may be no trial since Halas has left town with apparently no intention of pressing charges.

Auerbach's Fined

NEW YORK (U)—Coach Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics was fined $150 Tuesday by President Maurice Podoloff of the National Basketball Assn. for a run-in with officials last weekend in the Celtics' opening game.

will be handled by Fred Braselton and Walter Howard.

Speed boy Frank Nix missed Tuesday's practice. The sophomore right halfback is having a broken blood vessel in his nose doctored. He'll likely be ready for the Blue Devil scrap though.

Soph Marvin Tibbets, who switched from quarterback to full and filled in for Simerville capably Saturday, is looking mighty impressive, especially on defense. And defense is what the Jackets figure they'll be needing a lot of against the bulky Ducks.

Dodd said Tuesday he hadn't made up his mind which boy to start Saturday. "Marvin is a good tough defensive player, but not quite as good a runner as Lester."

The Jackets are working in blue jerseys this week. The Ducks, exercising their rights as home teamers, plan to wear white.

Halfback Floyd Faucette, Tech's leading rusher with 231 yards in 42 carries for a 5.5 average, was informed he's an all-American. Floyd's been named to the Boy Scout All-America by Boys Life Magazine.

CONSTITUTION PREP RANKINGS

BROWN, JONESBORO 'JOIN' BIG TEN

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Eleven Georgia football teams forged into the "Big Ten" of their own classifications last week, but La-Grange, Cairo,

Stephens County,
Tucker and Hawkinsville clung staunchly to top spots in the Constitution rankings.

Jack Peek's
Brown Rebels, claiming tenth spot with a 32-6 smashing of West Fulton, were the only newcomers to elite circles in Class AAA. And only Graham Hixon's Gainesville eleven, which grabbed ninth place in a 7-6 shading of Elberton, broke the status quo in AA.

But in Class A, where not a change took place in the top five, the "old" bottom five was wiped out completely except for tenth-ranked Commerce, which overturned tough Monroe, 7-6.
The sixth-through-ninth places were gained, in order, by Summerville, Model, Jonesboro and Carrollton. They bowled over Ringgold, 41-0; Pickens County, 19-0; tied AA Newman, 19-19, and tripped Osborne, 26-7.

John Smith's Camden County
Hurricanes and Aubert Kin-saul's Montgomery County Rebels stormed into ninth and 10th in B by dumping Patterson, 34-0, and Glennville, 27-20. In Class C, Bobby Rich's Sparta
Saints, Branch Bragg's Coosa
Eagles and G. M. Charles' Greensboro Tigers moved into the six, seven and ten holes.

Tallapoosa stayed on Hawkinsmage past North Cobb.

Glynn Academy, Northside and North Fulton eased ahead a notch each to three-four-five in AAA with 33-0, 18-0 and 34-0 shellings of Groves, Sylvan and O'Keefe. R. E. Lee clipped Columbus, 19-7, and vaulted into sixth over Albany, which bounced Baker, 27-0. Moultrie continued ninth after a 7-7 tie with Valdosta, the Wildcats tumbling five stairs to eighth.

Dalton, 13-12 loser to West Rome, slipped two places to seventh as Waycross and Jesup bumped off Coffee County and Bacon County, 21-14 and 48-6, and eased ahead of the Cata-mounts. Westminster and Bainbridge, 20-13 and 19-7 victors over South Cobb and Tifton, held on at eighth and ten.

Hogansville gained a peg to second in B, tripping Mary Persons, 28-13. Morgan County and Washington-Wilkes kayaked Monticello and Madison County, 35-0 and 35-7, and moved up a slot apiece into third and fourth ahead of Fort Valley, 7-0 victor over tough Dublin. Clarkston took four giant strides into sixth by thumping Rockdale County, 21-0. Idle Metter dropped a peg to eighth, making room for Jenkins County, which plummeted five spots to seventh in falling before Waynesboro, 25-19.

The victory upped Waynesboro a peg to third in C, and Warren County ripped four spots upward to fourth with a 7-6 shading of Tannville, which tumbled two stairs to fifth. East Fannin clobbered Georgia Industrial, 25-7, and bettered its position a slot to ninth.

Those dropping from "Big Ten" status included Sylvan,
Cedartown—41-13 loser to Bay
County, Fla.—Dublin, Screven, Cartersville, Ringgold, Perry,
Rabun, Lincolnton, Louisville and Putnam County. All were losers.

Southeastern Open king Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn., a youngster who plans to launch his PGA tour career in next week's Carling Open here at Cherokee Town and Country Club has been placed on the club's special invitation list.

This means the former Walker Cup star will be exempt from the qualifying round if one is necessary.

Joe, former National Collegiate champion, is rated almost a sure bet to make good on the golden trail.

Bob Hayes, State PGA titlist from Macon; Darwin White, Alabama PGA champion from Anniston, and Dick Cline, Alabama Open winner from Lannett, were others on the special Tuesday by tournament chairman Howard Stillwell.

Georgia Open champ Jim Stamps, Dalton, and SEPGA title holder Billy Capps come in under tournament exemption rule.

Gene Dahlbender Jr. is one of four amateurs to receive special invitations. The other three will be announced later this week.

Billy Casper, second leading money winner this year with $37,923, heads up latest list of will have to exceed 120 before a qualifying round is necessary Sunday.

The tournament proper is scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday,
Friday and Sunday of next week.
Saturday will be skipped in order not to conflict with Georgia Tech-Clemson game.

Carrollton, Marietta, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, and Florida) will be shooting for a special pot of $1,500 in addition to a portion of the

most of the latter lot is expected to go to the tourist sharpies.

Stillwell said parking facilities would be provided free on the roads and streets north of Sandy Springs for 7,000 cars. A shuttle bus service (round-trip fee, 60 cents), will be provided from parking area to Cherokee clubhouse.

Word Tuesday was U.S. Open out. Ditto Slamm'n Sam Snead.

Bowling Clinic

—BY BILLY SIXTY—

A Special Technique for Women Bowlers

First of all, let me say that there is no difference in bowling form for men and women bowlers. The same precepts apply—push-away coordinated with the first step (in four-step footwork), smooth swing grooved close to the body, sliding finish to the foul line and natural follow-through from the point of ball release.

as shown in sketch. Make the left hand support most of the weight of the ball. Keep the arms close to the sides. Now the left hand and arm push the ball forward as the first step is taken. The fingers of the right hand are fully spread, with the little finger under the ball. The position of the right hand remains unchanged throughout the swing, so that the little finger will play its part in imparting hook spin at the time of ball release.

Extend the arms fully in the push-away, so that the natural swing defeats the temptation to force the ball or rush the footwork.
With proper finishing slide, and the body balanced throughout the delivery, a natural follow-through and proper speed result.

For a step-by-step description of what the ideal approach should be, read my brand-new pamphlet, "The Keys to Better Bowling." A copy's yours for 10 cents and a stamped, return envelope sent to me, Billy Sixty, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Don Newcombe Indicted
For '57 Tavern Brawl

From Press Dispatches
Don Newcombe, Cincinnati Red-legs' pitcher, was indicted for "atrocious assault and battery"
Tuesday in the wake of an altercation at his Newark, N.J., tavern last year.

The Essex County grand jury indicted Don's brother, Norman, on the same charge, and a third brother, Harold,
was indicted for possessing a revolver with intent to use it unlawfully.

The charges stemmed from an alleged attack on Ulysses Ross of East Orange, N.J., a former

Don Newcombe

Baseball in Brief

policeman there. The fracas allegedly took place on Dec. 22, 1957, and the indictment charges that Don and Norman beat Ross about the face and body and ejected him from the tavern.

It further alleges that Harold threatened Ross with the revolver after the ex-officer was outside the establishment.

MORE BASEBALL—The fate of the Louisville, Ky., American Assn. franchise is expected to be decided at a meeting in Memphis next week. Joe Burke, Colonels' general manager, said he will present the true picture to enable officials to make their own plans.
Louisville was given a $25,000 franchise free two years ago and had $24,000 worth of help last year. Burke said he will say the club cannot operate in 1959 unless $50,000 more is made available.

"The realignment committee will then decide as to whether the association can find another city to replace us," he concluded.

Pacific Coast League directors discussed possible realignment before ending their annual fall meeting. The directors approved a resolution to expand to 10 or 12 teams when suitable cities are available, but said expansion is not imminent. Pres. Leslie O'Connor, a $20,000-a-year man, was retained for 1959, and Clyde Perkins of the Portland Beavers was named to represent the PCL at next week's Memphis conclave.

... Paul Campbell, former major league outfielder and first baseman, was signed by the Reds to scout the Carolinas, West Virginia and part of Virginia. ...
Cincinnati virtually eliminated its spring exhibition tour and plans to train a few days longer in Florida. ... The first bath of cement splashed into the foundation of the San Francisco Giants' new stadium and a rash of protests by nearby residents over inconveniences it brought them.

COP's Bass Keeps Nation's Rushing Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Because College of Pacific doesn't have a passing attack strong enough to loosen up the opposition, defenses were able to gang up on Dick Bass, a terrific runner, and shove him down to sixth place on the total offense list.

Bass, out ahead of all major college rivals in ground gains for the fifth straight week, also was national total offense leader a week ago. But Marquette's massed defenses held him to 28 yards in 10 ground plays and five players passed him in the statistical race.

Bass still held the rushing lead with a total of 647 yards on 79 carries. His margin over runner-up Don Perkins of New Mexico is a comfortable 115 yards. Bill Holclaw of Virginia Tech, who throws the ball more often than he runs with it, regained the total offense lead in the shuffle. Lee Grosscup of Utah moved to the top in forward passing.

Grosscup, who has completed 55 of 99 passes in the past two weeks, displaced the virtually inactive Bob Newman of Washington, last season's total offense champ, as leader in the air department. He has 55 completions.

The comparatively slow pace of the leaders enabled three players to register spectacular gains —Charley Milstead of Texas A&M, Bob White of Ohio State and Randy Duncan of Iowa.

Milstead accounted for 427 yards in two weeks to jump to third place in total offense, trailing another single-wing tailback, Billy Austin of Rutgers, by only four yards.

White, a big, bruising fullback, vaulted from 76th to sixth in rushing in two weeks. Duncan advanced from seventh to second in passing in just one week, when he hit 14 of 18 against Northwestern.

Holclaw, who accounted for 162 yards in Virginia Tech's near upset of West Virginia, has an 806-yard offense total for six games and Milstead 773 for six.

Szuzina in TV Match

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Rory Calhoun, the world's seventh-ranked middleweight, and Franz Szuzina, a tough German with a mailer's reputation, clash Wednesday night in the Rochester War Memorial. The 10-rounder will be nationally televised.

Calhoun's record is 36-5-10. Szuzina, fighting in this country since 1956, has a 46-17-13 record.

Philco's Boss Bows To Miss America

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Two celebrities more or less identified with the Philco Corp. flew into Atlanta Tuesday afternoon.

We interviewed the one who runs the company, James M. Skinner, who quickly noted that not only is he the "lesser" of the pair, but that "the other one is better looking."

He added, "you ought to be interviewing her."

Muttering what was intended as a polite protest, we admitted we hadn't been able to convince the city editor that business beat duties included chatting with Miss America.

The Philco president made some sympathetic noises, no doubt because his company sponsors the Miss America contest telecast as well as some of the winner's trips.

Besides, we thought, even though she's better looking, he's the boss.

Here to visit his old friend and distributor, J. C. Brown of Brown Distributing Co., Skinner offered some intriguing answers to a host of questions:

On color television — "There's no way to get into color without losing money. The sets are not good enough yet, and prices are too high, from $800 up."

"It's just a theory, but we think a color set should not cost more than $100 over a 21-inch black and white TV set, which now averages around $299."

But the day of a $400 color set is not in sight, so Philco's sticking to black and white."

On TV set appearance — "The picture-on-the-wall type screen is still five to 10 years off."

"But our new design (a flatter picture tube that swivels on top of an oblong control-speaker box) has enabled us to stay ahead of last year in sales (although the TV market as a whole is pretty soft.)"

Did the new design remind him of the way some radio receivers looked about 30 years ago?

"I remember those," came his guarded reply.

On appliances — "Appliances led the recession by a year and a half, but sales have been firming up in the last three or four months. We hope they'll continue to in 1959."

On prices — "The only price increases (on major appliance sales and/or service) that could come in 1959 would be nominal, reflecting ing only whatever inflationary increases that come in material and labor costs."

On the recession — "We were clipped very badly by the recession. Philco lost a lot of money in the first half of 1958, but we made up our losses in the third quarter and expect the fourth quarter to be as good or better."

Of Big 3, Only GM Had Quarterly Profit

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. Tuesday reported a net profit of $62,401,191 for the year's third quarter, compared with $118,943,546 for the same 1957 period.

GM thus became the only one of the big three auto makers to report a third-quarter profit. Ford recently announced a loss of $21,600,000 and Chrysler a loss of $20,000,000 in the July-August-September quarter.

General Motors' profits for the first nine months of 1958 were reported as $389,451,291, down from $593,716,104 in the same 1957 period. Both Ford and Chrysler reported nine-month losses this year.

GM earnings per share of common stock were 22 cents in the third quarter and $1.39 for the nine months, compared with 1957 returns of 43 cents and $2.14, respectively.

Ford figured its nine-month loss at $16,200,000. Chrysler said its nine-month loss was $45,200,000. Ford made money in the year's first quarter; Chrysler did not.

General Motors said dollar sales in the first nine months were 82 per cent of those in the corresponding 1957 period. The third-quarter rate was only 70 per cent, which GM blamed primarily on model change-overs and sporadic strikes.

Sales in this year's first nine months totaled $7,744,000,000, compared with $8,235,000,000 in similar 1957. Third-quarter sales this year were $1,623,000,000 against $2,321,000,000 in the last year's same three months.

GM car and truck sales totaled 2,345,497 units in the first three-fourths of 1958, compared with 2,908,482 in 1957. Third-quarter production was 506,607 units against 811,143.

Business Advancing Faster Than Usual

Recovery Is Broadening, Commerce Dept. Reports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Business has advanced faster than usual this fall, and the economic recovery is broadening.

These were the principal conclusions reported by the Commerce Department Tuesday in its monthly review of the business situation.

The department said economic yardsticks which usually lag during a recovery period "are now showing signs of improvement." Other more volatile indicators have been advancing for several months. It said this means the business upturn now is rather broad.

A better-than-seasonal autumn increase in activity has been reflected in rising personal income and buying power, the report said. Personal income rose 1 1/2 billion dollars last month, to a record $57.4 billion. Most of the rise was attributed to bigger wage and salary payments.

Nonfarm employment has increased 700,000 from a recession low of 50 million, the report noted. It added that this is still 1 1/2 million below the level a year ago.

SUMMING UP

Summing up factors which continue to cloud the business picture, the report said: "The recovery in employment has been rather limited; investment in industrial and commercial facilities, although leveling off, is not yet advancing, and auto production still has not given the stimulus which will come with large-scale output of 1959 cars."

Despite these negative factors, the department said industrial production has shown a marked recovery which has been shared by all major industrial divisions except autos.

It said better-than-average advances have occurred in primary metals, electrical machinery, construction materials, rubber, crude petroleum, and textiles and apparel. Industries which have continued to lag were listed as autos, nonelectrical machinery, instruments, and transportation equipment.

It said production of soft goods has risen to a new high but that the big recession decline in durables output has been only partially reversed.

In a separate report, the department said the container and packaging industries are showing signs of a year-end pickup.

American Cyanamid Co. has announced it will transfer its Atlanta branch next Spring from Spring street, NW, to a new 42,300-square-foot building in the Chamblee industrial area.

American Bankers Co. has declared two dividends and reported consolidated net after-tax earnings of $3,639,839 for the first 40 weeks of 1958. This compares with $4,282,829 for the like period last year. Per common share earnings dropped from $2.56 to $2.15. The regular quarterly dividends are: 60 cents a share on common stock, and $1.12 1/2 a share on 4 1/2 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock of the corporation. Both are payable Dec. 1 to holders of record Nov. 12.

Studebaker-Packard Corp., South Bend, Ind., will hold its 1959 Studebaker product training program for Atlanta area dealers and sales personnel Wednesday at the Henry Grady Hotel. District sales manager E. Pigg and his assistant, A. A. Fromholz, will conduct the meeting.
